Processing Information: The Howard A. Kelly Collection was processed by Lisa Rosner and Eleanor Denison in 1981. The project was supported by a grant from the NIH National Library of Medicine (LM 03594). Between 1998-2002, Medical Archives volunteer Elizabeth R. Peterson revised the collection inventory and completed descriptions of Howard Kelly's diaries. In 2013 and 2022-2023, Peterson began processing and describing the unprocessed parts of the collection. The diaries series was digitized in 2020-2021 by Backstage Library Works under the direction of Phoebe Evans Letocha. Funding for the digitization was provided by a gift from J. Mario Molina. Transcriptions of the diaries are being completed by Woolcott Kelly, Marion Davis, Victoria Chhang and Juliana Marquez. Medical Archives students assistants Lucas Dean and Niola Etienne also assisted in reviewing the diaries.

Collection Overview

Extent: 50 linear feet

Creator: Kelly, Howard A. (Howard Atwood), 1858-1943.

Administrative/Biographical History:

Howard A. Kelly was born in Camden, New Jersey, and reared in nearby Philadelphia. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with an A.B. in 1877 and received an M.D. from the same institution in 1882. He interned at Episcopal Hospital (1882-1883) and then entered private practice in Philadelphia. In 1883, he founded Kensington Hospital for Women in Philadelphia. From 1888 to 1889, he served as associate professor and professor of obstetrics at the University of Pennsylvania. Between 1886 and 1889, he made various trips to Europe to study and visit hospitals. Recruited by William Osler, Kelly came to Johns Hopkins in 1889 as gynecologist and obstetrician and professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the school of medicine which was being formed. A few years later, he also joined the staff of a private hospital that his colleague Hunter Robb had established. In 1912, the private hospital was renamed the Howard A. Kelly Hospital. He retained an affiliation with the Kelly Hospital until it closed in 1940. At Johns Hopkins, Kelly rose through the academic ranks. He served as professor of gynecology and obstetrics (1889-1899), professor of gynecology (1899-1919), and emeritus professor of gynecology (1919-1943). Kelly was a highly innovative surgeon. He invented numerous surgical devices, pioneered many new operative procedures for the female sexual organs, kidneys, and ureters, and was an early proponent of the use of radium for the treatment of cancer. Kelly contributed significantly to the establishment of gynecology as a specialty. He was a highly effective teacher who taught mainly by demonstration in small groups. A prolific writer,

Kelly published extensively on surgical subjects as well as medical biography, botany, and the natural sciences. He was a deeply religious man who engaged in an active course of civic work throughout his life.

Chronology: 1889-1943 - Johns Hopkins Hospital
Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine

Scope and Content:

The Howard A. Kelly Collection spans his entire medical career. Series include professional and family correspondence, manuscripts, notes, published material, photographs, scrapbooks, genealogical records, and mementos. In addition, there are personal diaries from 1870 to 1937. Particularly noteworthy are the large numbers of stereographs showing the evolution of surgical procedures in late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century gynecology.

Accruals Description: 1979-103, 1985-032, 1987-040, 1990-084, 1990-149, 1991-001, 2003- 111, 2009-090, 2009-147, 2010-102, 2010-133, 2011-034, 2013-051, 2013-067, 2013-080, 2014-038, 2014-078, 2014-079, 2015-040, 2016-071, 2016-072, 2017-008, 2018-017, 2018-049, 2020-012, 2023-054

Custodial History:

Much of the material in this collection came to Johns Hopkins in the summer of 1945 when Olga Kelly sold the family home and transferred her father's papers and mementos to the Welch Medical Library. They were transferred to the Chesney Medical Archives in 1979 shortly after it was established. Additional Kelly materials have been added to the collection since it was originally processed. These have primarily come from family members.

Language: English

Series 12: Diaries - 1903-1943; 1876-1883; 1867-1872

Extent: 137 volumes in 8 boxes

Scope and Content: The Kelly diaries span most of Howard Atwood Kelly's life starting in 1867. 3 Copybooks from 1867-1872 record compositions from Kelly's youth, while the diaries from 1876-1943 cover his entire adult life. Kelly kept a diary from 1876 to 1883. There are no diaries for the period 1884 to 1902. Beginning in 1903, Kelly restarted his practice of recording daily events in a diary or journal. On the inside front cover of most diaries, Howard Kelly recorded the names and addresses of his correspondents. In most of Howard Kelly's diaries, his notes are infused with Bible scripture or events in his life or items in the news media that spark a moment's divine inspiration.

Archival Arrangement: Diaries are arranged chronologically. In many of Kelly's diaries especially those after the year 1903, he often numbered the pages of his journal. In the summaries that follow the numbered journal pages are referenced where applicable. Also referenced is the book by Audrey W. Davis, Dr. Kelly's assistant and adviser for the last 20 years of his life. The book is entitled "Dr. Kelly of Hopkins: Surgeon, Scientist, Christian," published in 1959 by The Johns Hopkins University Press, Baltimore, Maryland.

Folder 1876: Diary, 1876 - 1876

Scope and Content: The diary represents details of the daily life of Howard Kelly as a University of Pennsylvania undergraduate. He documents lectures, readings, dissections and experiments on frogs and snakes. He records walks to Chester and the surrounding Philadelphia area as well as fishing, swimming, horseback riding, canoeing. He also records more than one visit to the Centennial Exposition, family birthdays and items needed for his trip. Other pursuits include shooting, looking for bones, finding and playing with snakes. At the end of the diary, there is a typed summary written decades later describing a 1876 trip to Canada with friend Edward P. Anderson (EPA in the diaries) when they traveled from Niagara Falls to Toronto and then to Orillia. At an Objibway burial ground near Lake Couchiching outside Orillia, his party dug up 53 skulls. He selects several, places them in a bolster case and returns with them to Philadelphia for the Franklin Scientific Society for which he is President (See Dr. Kelly of Hopkins; Audrey W. Davis; The Johns Hopkins Press, Baltimore, Md.; 1959, p.18-19).

Folder 1882: Diary, 1882 - 1882

Scope and Content: In January and early February, Howard Kelly studies diligently, writes his thesis and vaccinates himself, family members and some patients (Davis, p. 39). He celebrates his 24th birthday (February 20), writes a passage from Proverbs 19.17 and finishes exams by February 28. On March 6 he pays a $30 diploma fee. On March 15th he records his graduation in Medicine with prizes and an honorable mention (Davis, p. 37). On March 30, Kelly writes, "I received First Term by vote 18 out of 22. Episcopal Hosp. Residents Elected" and by April 1 he is at Episcopal Hospital "Yes!" treating 53 cases. On July 31 he is "up to Med. Disp for last time" and begins his surgical residency the next day going through the wards daily by himself or with Dr. Lewis. On November 1, he notes "Father gave me $10 towards ophthalmoscope" (Davis, p.39) and Kelly states using it November 24. Through the end of the year, continues to record his daily pattern -number of cases seen, specific patients, diagnoses, breaks for meals and relaxation. On December 31, he writes, "In closing this book I dedicate myself- my time, my capabilities, my ambition-everything to Him who has so graciously brought me through the year in health and strength..." (Davis, p.37).

Technical Access Element: Blank pages were not digitized.

Folder 1883: Diary, 1883 - 1883

Scope and Content: Howard Kelly continues his work on the wards with Dr. Lewis, but now has time to write articles such as one on double vagina on January 16. He performs many postmortems and records the diagnoses. On March 31, he tours the wards with Dr. Lewis "for last time" and turns the wards over to Dr. Henry and Jim Carpenter. On April 9, he takes "charge of Surgical Wards with Forbes." On occasion he notes going to the hospital to give the children ice cream treats (March 26, April 20, June 29). On May 16 his sister, Dora, is married to Larry. He begins plans for an office and notes the price tag on June 7 at $800. (Davis, p. 41) Office plans and building progress through June.
