Collection Overview

Creator: Johns Hopkins Nurses' Alumni Association
The Johns Hopkins Nurses Alumnae Magazine

Administrative/Biographical History:

The Johns Hopkins Nurses Alumnae Magazine is first published in December 1901 as a quarterly publication of the Johns Hopkins Nurses Alumnae Association. Ada Carr is editor with Miss Ross, O'Bryan, A. Miller, McDonnell, Nutting, Rice and Bartlett as members of the Committee on Publications. In an editorial, they note that several other nurses alumni associations had been publishing magazines. In addition to publishing news of the Association's quarterly meetings, the committee asked for "contributions to consist of news items of novel or later methods of nursing care or training, short papers, experiences abroad or at home -- in brief, anything that may be of interest to our widely scattered alumnae." The magazine was meant to allow the members to "follow the progress of their Association and learn of the problems, the efforts and achievements of their sister nurses."

In 2003, Nursing News, the Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing publication, and Vigilando, the Johns Hopkins Nurses' Alumni Association publication, ceased regular publication. The Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing and the Johns Hopkins Nurses' Alumni Association combined resources to produce a new publication, "Johns Hopkins Nursing", which reached a wider audience of alumni, faculty, staff, students and friends of the School of Nursing. "Vigilando" became a regular section within the new magazine, which includes the Alumni Class News and message from the Johns Hopkins Nurses' Alumni Association President. One final Homecoming issue of "Vigilando", which was sent only to alumni, was published in 2003.

Note on the Title: The publication had five different titles, although some differed only slightly. The following is a list of title variations in chronological order by date of publication: 1) 1901-April 1956: The Johns Hopkins Nurses Alumnae Magazine; 2) July 1956-1971: The Alumnae Magazine; 3) 1972-Summer 1987: The Alumni Magazine; 4) Winter 1987-1989: The Johns Hopkins Nurses' Alumni Magazine; (No volume published in 1990); 5) 1991-2003: Vigilando.

Note on the Volume numbering: For most of its run, the journal volume number is one number prior to that of the year of publication. For instance, volume 1 was published in 1902 and volume 2 in 1903,... volume 79 was published in 1980. However, volume numbering irregularities occurred in the decade of the 1980s. In 1981, the volume has two numbers, one on the cover (80) and a different one on the title page (81). From 1982 until 1989, the volume number that is on the journal is the same as the year. So, the 1982 publication is labeled as volume 82,... the 1989 publication as volume 89. The Alumnae Association did not produce any issues of the magazine in 1990. In 1991, the fall issue does not display a volume number. From 1992 until the serial's final year, 2003, the volume numbering resumes its original pattern of one number prior to that of the publication year. Volume 91 was published in 1992, .... volume 102 was published in 2003.

Scope and Content:

Since the beginning of the nursing alumnae magazine in 1901 to its end in 2003 little about its contents has changed, although the sophistication of and the quantity in certain areas have grown. Despite the turnovers and changes with the leadership, consistency has been noted in the contents of the magazine. In the first issue in 1901, the staff asked for "patience," "cooperation," and "voluntary contributions." In 2000, the staff echoed the same needs. In every issue, the emphasis on nursing and nursing issues took precedence over other general subjects. Throughout its existence, members of the Alumni Association faithfully contributed articles and news of interest to the alumni for publication.

The first issue (Volume 1 Number 1) contained the report of the Business Meeting of the Nurses Alumnae Association, then held quarterly. The coverage included the reports of the various committees of the Association, e.g. Membership, Finance, Gate House Shop, Sick Benefit Fund, Endowment, Publication (or Editorial), as well as Special Committees. This coverage was maintained faithfully and in the last issue of the magazine (Winter 2002), the minutes and proceedings of the Annual Meeting are reported in detail. The first issue also included news of activities in the School of Nursing, another constant piece of content maintained throughout the years. Another article wrote of the opening of the new Orthopedic Clinic, which began the magazine's consistency in keeping up-to-date with changes in both the school of nursing and the hospital itself. For example, in the January 1940 issue, brief articles with photographs wrote of the new school of nursing library and of the equally new Nurses' Infirmary.

Just as the details of graduation were covered as activities of the School of Nursing, also included were the speeches delivered during these proceedings. But speeches given at other occasions such as Homecoming also were included. In the July 1902 and 1906 issues, Dr. Henry Hurd's commencement speeches were printed as was Dr. Howard Kelly's Homecoming speech in the December issue of that year. In 1906, Dr. Hurd's newer commencement speech was printed and in the August 1918 issue, Dr. Thomas Cullen's speech at Homecoming appeared. This practice was constant. And finally, in the Summer 2000 issue appeared the speech at Pinning Ceremony by the Senior Class Advisor, Lori Edwards.

The first issue (Volume 1 Number 1) included Class News primarily about the professional, but also the personal, lives of the nursing alumnae, a section that grew as the number of alumnae increased. It also included a listing of the Marriages and Births within the group, another section that continued throughout its long history. Added to this continuing list was a listing of the Deaths, as they began to occur, first appearing in the December 1903 issue.

Editorials also began in this first issue and continued fairly consistently in the magazine. These not only expressed the opinions of the editors but just as often discussed the contents of the issue. In a December issue of 1903, the editorials included an assessment of the first two years of the endeavor; the resignation of its first editor, Ada Carr; new work in following tubercular patients at Hopkins; the new Training School Library, as well as several other professional topics. Editorials also addressed national and even world social problems such as women suffrage and the HIV/AIDS epidemic. Both editorials and articles frequently addressed the status of public health nursing, a field in which Hopkins nurse graduates pioneered. Sufficient money was always a problem and this need was constantly addressed, finding its way into the editorials in both the Summer 1995 and the Spring 2001 issues.

Although primarily for professional articles, there was the occasional strictly personal account by an alumna, usually of a vacation. In this first issue was an article on an Outing in Idaho. In April 1941 appeared an article by Catherine Wright, Class of 1908, on My Trip to Mexico. This was another practice continued through the 100 years of the magazine.

Of special note was the coverage during World War I and World War II with letters and articles "From the War Zone" where Hopkins had two overseas medical units, Johns Hopkins Base Hospital #18 and Army Hospital #2 in World War I and General Hospitals 18 and 118 during World War II. During World War I many articles appeared and even more long letters, descriptive of nursing work in general terms and specific occurrences of service during the war. Some of the authors were Amy MacMahon, Class of 1903, Clara Noyes, Class of 1896, Claire Craigen, Class of 1912, Ellen LaMotte, Class of 1902, all of whom continually sent letters to the alumnae magazine. Of unique interest were the frequent letters sent by Alice Fitzgerald, Class of 1906, who served overseas as the Edith Cavell Memorial Nurse during World War I. Coverage of the Hopkins nurse during World War II continued via both personal articles and letters. In addition, the Red Cross became more active in soliciting recruits; after the end of World War II, many nurses left the military and joined the Red Cross to give service during domestic emergencies. Also during World War II, many of the student nurses joined the Cadet Nurse Corps, led by a Hopkins alumna, Lucile Petry, Class of 1927, and letters in the magazine covered these experiences. In the October 1941 issue are the adventures of two alumnae (Sylvia Oiness, Class of 1938, and Marian McGill, Class of 1936) in two separate articles that describe the sinking of their ships and their subsequent rescue.

Public Health Nursing was a subject frequently covered in the magazine in its earlier years, probably due in large part to the role different alumnae played in its development. Both Isabel Hampton Robb and Adelaide Nutting felt a great responsibility for developing public health services for the community. Evelyn Pope Lord, Class of 1891, began the organization of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Association in Baltimore. The work was continued by Ada Carr, Class of 1893. Later, Mary Lent, Class of 1895, took it over and developed it to a fully operating service. The alumnae magazine always included a summary of the yearly activities of the Public Health nurse and articles describing the activities of the public health organization all around the world. Articles in the magazine wrote of district nursing in China, Canada, Minnesota, New York, Boston, Cleveland among other states or cities or countries. Public Health also was included in the curriculum of the student nurse at Hopkins, especially when a second community base was opened for more students (Miriam Ames, Class of 1914, Volume 34 Number 1, pages 17 – 19). Coverage of the Public Health nursing slowed considerably after the thirties, surfacing in the magazine for annual reports and when articles with individual experiences were sent in by alumnae. In Volume 91 Number 1 Annie Richardson, Class of 1991, writes of her experiences in Ghana and Mikhaila Barg, Class of 1991, tells of her experiences in El Salvador.

Also of special note has been the consistent coverage of the rugged path of the school of nursing to a collegiate school of nursing, a journey that really began in the thoughts of Isabel Hampton Robb, proceeded to the brain and spirit of Adelaide Nutting and from her through the years to all who became Hopkins nursing graduates. As early as 1902, in his address to the graduating class, Dr. Hurd spoke of “women and men of better education” seeking training as nurses. In her graduation address in May, 1903 (Vol.2 #3), Mrs. Robb spoke of the need for more skilled teachers as she advanced the principle of “paid instruction.” In 1907, Miss Nutting advocated a three year program with a six month preparatory course (Vol. 6 #1). In 1914, convinced that professional schools needed their own endowments, the Alumnae Association began its Endowment Fund Committee which remained active throughout the following years. Minor adjustments and advancements in the School program were made during the next 30 to 40 years as the School gained in stature among schools of nursing throughout the world. Efforts continued to increase the money donated to the Endowment Fund. Efforts also were made to increase the education requirements for admission to two years of college as “desirable” but not “essential.” For several years in the late 40’s, college graduation became the educational entrance requirement, but was discontinued because the classes became too small. The hospital school of nursing closed after graduation in 1973. It was followed for a few years by the School of Health Services Nursing Education Program, which closed in 1979. In 1983, under Carol Gray, the current collegiate school opened as the Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing.

In addition to the articles that appeared consistently, there were other features that were seen. Book Reviews of various lengths began in March 1907 by V. M. MacDonald who wrote brief reviews of books to be enjoyed by nurses and patients for pleasure, none for professional purposes. In the May, 1910 issue, Ruth Brewster Sherman, Class of 1901, began her consistent feature with either single sentence comments or more detailed opinions of the reviewer. These Book Reviews continued until 1944 with either Miss Sherman or “guest reviewers.” From that time on, a book review was an uncommon feature in the magazine.

In the Winter 1998 issue came the first of what was planned to be a series called Unforgettable Moments, a “series” that lasted for only two issues. Round Table discussions also were featured in only two issues -- the Spring issues of 1998 and 1999, one on Ethical Dilemmas in Nursing and the other on Nursing in the Nineties and Into the Millenium, both discussions being led by Jeannette Ollodart Marx, Class of 1957.

Although there were times when the editor of the magazine served for only brief periods, several alumnae held the position for ten years or more. Some served for a period of time, then returned to the position in later years. Ada M. Carr, Class of 1893, was the first editor for two years, returning for a few issues until 1913. Mary Bartlett Dixon Cullen, Class of 1903, served from 1913 until 1927. She was followed by Clara Noyes, Class of 1893, who served for ten years from 1927 to April 1936 as did her successor Claire Craigen, Class of 1912, until 1936. Mary Kuntz, Class of 1943, also took the position from 1963 until 1973, followed by Betty Borenstein Scher, Class of 1950, from 1973 until the cessation of publication in 2002.

Vigilando stopped publication after the 2002 issues, becoming a section of the new Johns Hopkins Nursing Magazine, which is where it stands today.

Article 1:1:16: An Outing in Idaho - December 1901

Creator: Miller, Amy P.

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: This is an interesting account of a trip to the U.S West to the town of Ketchum which lies in the heart of the Idaho Rockies. From here the group rode horses on a camping trip up the mountains. The article describes the great beauty of the area and concluded with the thought that it was well worth the while, recommending that not only men should go West, but young women -- too -- should visit.

Article 1:2:38: Report of Visiting Nurse - March 1902

Creator: Emory, Mary Virginia

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: In spite of a certain hesitancy by the public, the visiting nurse practice has grown slowly but steadily. Unfortunately, those patients in "moderate circumstances" have not availed themselves of the service as have those of the "wealthy and independent." It is felt, however, that only too soon will the services of a second visiting nurse be needed.

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: In his visit to the United States the president of the British Medical Association has found several things of interest. First, he says that "the great character of the American hospitals in the worship of asepsis" and cites several examples he noted. He also notes the use by Dr. William Halsted of silver foil as a post-operative dressing. Finally he comments on nursing, noting that the nurses "are treated with great deference," again citing a few examples. The March 1902 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Article 1:2:40: Re-Vaccination - March 1902

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: The appearance of small-pox in both Philadelphia and Baltimore creates the need for vaccination or re-vaccination against the disease. The article cites statistics by both Dr. Osler and Dr. Welch supporting this action. For the fifth time in twelve years the entire staff and all inpatients at Hopkins have been vaccinated. In the United States vaccination is compulsory while in England it is voluntary. Although the length of time the vaccination protects an individual is variable, it is felt that it should be given between the ages of 10 and 15 years, and whenever small pox is epidemic. Article 1:2:43: Hospital News - March 1902

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: The first piece of progress at the hospital is the addition of the wards for "colored" patients which are three stories high and accommodate 80 patients and provide all services. During the same year, the outside obstetric service was opened with these services shared by a few graduates, the students of the school, and graduates of Old Dominion Hospital in Richmond, VA. who do not receive this experience during their student education. The third change was in the School of Nursing which lengthened its course to three years, shortened its day to eight hours, and abolished payment to students. The final change reported was the addition of the quarters provided for the nursing staff. (This article is to be continued in the next issue.)

Creator: Hurd, Henry M. (Henry Mills), 1843-1927

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: In this speech, Dr. Hurd first praises the graduates as "thinkers and doers" as opposed to merely "theoretical" knowledge, as persons who can solve social and practical problems. The majority of the address are his "few personal words" to the graduates. First, continue to be students, even pursuing some special line of study, reading nursing periodicals and new textbooks. Next, become active in some social or charitable work to prevent "getting out of touch" with society and the nursing profession. Third, be sure to put money away for those years when one no longer works.

Article 1:3:65: Nurses' Settlement, Richmond, Virginia - July 1902

Creator: Cabaniss, Sadie H.

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: This article tells the story of the struggle to develop a working program of a visiting nurse service in Richmond, Virginia. It has taken begging money, getting cooperation, setting up systems, establishing classes; but the program finally is bearing fruit for giving care and teaching promotion of health to the district. The Class of 1900 at Old Dominion Hospital School of Nursing gave it the initial push, beginning with purchase of a house in the "central but rather unfashionable part of the city." Finally, with the help of the local Women's Club, the work "took off." Gradually, they have met with success, developed a program for "trained attendants, a well equipped loan closet, and care for so many." The writer tells of areas still needed and looks forward to more progress in its next year. She also invites others to come with them as well. Article 1:3:69: As Others See Us - July 1902

Creator: Bean, Mary Cloud, 1868-1953

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: This article is a strong protest against a recent article in the April issue of the British Nineteenth Century magazine. The article lambasts "hospital nurses" as being unsympathetic, showing indifference to families and callousness to suffering, being limited in knowledge. The writer calls on fellow nurses to teach the public how wrong these sentiments are. In a brief addendum the editorial staff of the Alumnae Magazine asks that nurses write the magazine in protest and rebuttal, some of whom already have done so. Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: In this brief article, the writer begins by quoting someone 50 years earlier about the inadequacies of his cook and the necessities for courses and schools teaching the chemistry and science of cooking. The final paragraph presents the fact that such courses exist in the U.S. in Washington and Philadelphia. And the claim is made that such teaching trains the "faculties, the eye, the hand, the mind, i.e. by experiment and observation." The July 1902 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: In this second year of publication, the journal's financial status is quite favorable, even complimented by successful business men. The matter of subscriptions was discussed and all nurses were urged to subscribe. Other matters: the incorporation of the magazine in New York because that is where most stockholders are; payment for articles; the importance of the magazine to nurses overseas or in small towns; the need to keep unqualified people out of the profession and the help the magazine can give towards that goal.

Article 1:4:115: A Word About One or Two Foreign Hospitals - December 1902

Creator: Madeira, Edith

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: In this article the author writes of three (3) hospitals -- St. Elizabeth's in Antwerp, an unnamed one next to the Church of San Onofico in Rome, the Stadt Krankenhaus and Corola Haus in Dresden. At the St. Elizabeth's, she praises the hospital for its cleanliness, thoroughness, modern operating rooms as she sums it up as "one of the very best hospitals I have seen outside of America, and one of the quaintest and most picturesque." The second, in Rome, is a 300-bed pediatric hospital in an old convent adjoining the Church of San Onofico with the children cared for by nuns. Although most of the German hospitals were "very disappointing," both the Stadt Krankenhaus and the Corola Haus in Dresden gained her approval as being clean and effective. Article 1:4:117: The True Spirit of the Nursing Profession - December 1902

Creator: Kelly, Howard A. (Howard Atwood), 1858-1943.

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: The writer congratulates the Association for its work, citing the previous ignoring of the poor who need nursing help by nurses as opposed to "catering in private practice to the rich alone. He suggests that all nurses give some time to the poor without charge, just as he claims physicians always do. He expresses a desire to see the teaching of "humanities" in the education of both nurses and doctors. Finally, he emphasizes the care of the whole patient: body mind, and "spirit."

Article 1:4:120: Progress in the Hospital - December 1902

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: This is the continuation of the article started in the March 1902 issue (erroneously called the "April" issue in the title). A major change lay not in a new building but the conversion of the old Ward I for the use of the medical school and nursing school for Obstetrics, with a few separate rooms set apart for the "isolation patients." The obstetrical area is described as being made more habitable through the use of bright paint but with few physical changes, which are minimally described. The next change cited is the conversion of the old "bath house" for the care of the increased numbers of pediatric patients. This change is not sufficient, but is better than previously available. Other changes are the addition of a larger Clinical Laboratory for the hospital and the Medical School, the enlargement of the gynecological operating room, the provision of a basement "baggage room," and the addition to the Hospital buildings by the enlargement of Ward H. later issue.)

Article 1:4:123: An Improved Bed Rest - December 1902

Creator: Simpson, Effie

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: This article is essentially a description of a new and improved bed rest for patients in bed. The older bed rest was both uncomfortable and ineffective. The new one, by curving the back support as our backs naturally are curved, corrects these defects. To accompany the article is a page of three photographs showing the bed rest in position in an empty bed, the bed rest with pillows placed in the empty bed, a patient sitting up in bed using the bed rest.

Extent: 1 folder

Scope and Content: In addition to the very brief bits of news of alumnae, this includes several somewhat longer mention of events in the news about nurses. One: nurses in Germany requesting standardized exams with certificates for those passing; two: support by American doctors for standardized exams for American nurses; three: decision in Canada supporting a suit for lack of payment for a nurse; four: brief report of various activities in the U.S. concerning the care of "dependent and neglected" children; five: announcement that Christian Science nurses no longer will treat patients with infectious diseases; six: brief discussion of what Osteopathy is. Finally, there is sympathy expressed to two alumnae on the deaths of family members.

Article 2:1:05: Concerning the "Special Assessment" - March 1903

Creator: Barnard, Helena

Scope and Content: The "special assessment" upon the members is for money for a Benefit Fund to support various causes or activities. One such activity is to help support the establishment of a American Journal of Nursing. Another is to assist in maintaining a course in Economics at Teachers' College in Columbia University. Other causes for our support include the Mt. Kisco village district nursing and funding sending delegates to the meetings of the national nurses' group. The unwillingness to raise dues for these purposes then requires contributions. There is the request for the members of the Association to consider the matter and to send in their opinions so that proper decisions can be made.

Article 2:1:12: The District Nurse, -- An Indispensable Factor in Charitable Work - March 1903

Scope and Content: The nurse is a welcome help to families in this charitable work. She is looked upon by the family as an educated and well-trained person. When one renders this help to the family and to society in general, that person deserves to be reimbursed. Charitable institutions have this responsibility. The writer then concludes with special mention of tuberculosis and the important role of the nurse in teaching the family how to prevent the spread of the disease.

Article 2:1:24: Nursing at the Adirondack Cottage Sanitarium - March 1903

Creator: Kernan, Agnes C.

Scope and Content: This article writes principally of the nursing responsibilities at the sanitarium as it extols the system of care and the positive results of the sanitarium with its cottage system for patients. It also tells some of the specifics, especially of the patient teaching to prevent spread of the illness. The nursing here is different from that in a hospital ward where all patients can be seen all the time, but it is a successful and happy kind of nursing here. Article 2:2:49: Report of Secretary of Roland Park Club - June 1903

Scope and Content: This lengthy report deals with the efforts of a local women's group to promote the retail products of the Consumers League which represents the manufactured results of women who are paid decent wages and work under decent working conditions as opposed to cheaper products made by "sweatshop workers" under the most vile conditions. The first work of the group was educational so that people understood the "meaning of the label." The merchants had to be convinced to carry these goods and the purchasers to purchase them, even though more expensive. The work has been expanded through the Press and the inspection of the producing factories. Article 2:3:079: Address--The Quality of Thoroughness,--Mrs. Robb - August 1903

Creator: Robb, Isabel Hampton, 1859-1910

Scope and Content: In this speech, Mrs. Robb speaks of the "lack of thoroughness" as being the lack of knowledge of household activities which she says is not a subject for the training school but should have been learned from childhood in the home. She, therefore, is calling for the improvement of the total education of women just as they need to be held in elevated status in our society. She also speaks of the need for the prevention of disease by the establishment of school nursing.

Article 2:4:144: The Maryland State Association of Graduate Nurses - December 1903

Creator: Harlan, Henry D.; Welch, William Henry, 1850-1934.

Scope and Content: After two years of consideration, the Maryland State Association of Graduate Nurses is now a reality. The beginning of this article tells of the development of the group. Following that are several speeches to the group. The first speech, by Mrs. William Ellicott, recalled the efforts of her father to bring "trained" nurses to Hopkins and the work of her organization to bring the graduate trained nurse to the community. The second speech, by Henry Harlan Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, spoke on the "Objects and Benefits" of legislation to get state registration for nurses so that standards for education and for nurses could be regulated. The third speech, by Dr. William Welch, of the work of the medical profession to achieve what is being sought now by nursing, i.e. state registration that establishes standards for nurses. Article 2:4:161: The Work of Our Visiting Nurses - December 1903

Creator: Holman, Nora Kathleen; Lawler, Elsie M.; Lent, Mary E.; Madeira, Edith; Washington, Hallie Lee

Scope and Content: (1) This organization has many facets and activities. The IVNS of Richmond is headquartered here; every resident must contribute something of "time, talent, or means" which has included teaching of various skills or subjects. A training class for caregivers has been started. Work has also shown corruption in several philanthropies and this has been remedied. All of this has been achieved in three years with very little money. (2) The work of the single nurse IVNS nurse of Washington has been very successful in its varied work with support from many helpful philanthropic local institutions: hospitals, homes for the aged, childrens' guardian groups, churches, diet kitchens, public school teachers among the many. (3) This is a summary of the very successful IVNS of Baltimore with the emphasis on both care of the ill and prevention of illness by teaching of the families and provision of necessary foods. Among the illnesses seen were typhoid fever, pneumonia, tuberculosis, other infectious diseases. Notice also is given to the help provided by philanthropic groups. (4) This Church Settlement House in a remote area in Philadelphia was established and met with almost immediate and overflowing success. Among the work have been care of the ill with doctors in their homes, teaching families, provision of milk for infants and children, and a "loan closet." (5) This article contains many brief anecdotes showing the superstitions of the various ethnic groups to prevent or treat different illnesses, e.g specific foods used to reduce fevers, the poison in the "first finger," beer for a sick infants. (6) Although there is an established method at Hopkins for the treatment of typhoid fever with cold sponge baths, there are new and almost contradictory methods to treat it. First, there is the "hot" treatment as opposed to the "cold" one; next, there is the "starvation" therapy. And both have proved quite successful. And the writer asks for others to be sent to her. Scope and Content:

This section contains articles or excerpts from articles in various medical publications. The first is about the very successful work of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City. Following this is a brief announcement of the establishment of a service for medical inspection of schools by Philadelphia. Next is an excerpt from the American Medicine magazine about the move, as noted about Hopkins, to have "nurse-training schools" on an "educational basis," i.e. giving no pay to student nurses, etc. This move is applauded in the article as the effort of "nurses to elevate their profession." Several excerpts give high praise to Mrs. Robb's graduation address at the JH school of nursing and give lengthy quotes from it. A final very short item writes of the home for nurses being built by the Presbyterian Hospital in New York City. The December 1903 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Article 3:2:065: Address to Graduates: The Trained Nurse in Philanthropy - June 1904

Creator: Devine, Edward T.

Scope and Content: In this speech, the speaker first discusses the nurse in general, how she is not just an extension of the physician, but a professional in her own right. He then presents the failings and strengths of different types of nurses, emphasizing their role in the prevention of disease and the relief of the sick -- without any ulterior motive (e.g. adding religious converts to a cause). The speaker then presents a general picture of philanthropy and proceeds to present the nurse who encloses the best of nursing and the philanthropic outlook and objective. He especially highlights the work of the visiting nurse whose recipients are not the sick in that home but really the family because they are the ones who will be taking care of the ill person. (Speech given at graduation of School of Nursing, Class of 1904.)

Article 3:2:078: The Training School - June 1904

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: In this annual report by the head of the nursing in the hospital and the school of nursing, Miss Nutting first cites the work and progress of the hospital: the help after the Great Fire of 1904, the great advantages to community by the hospital and its nurses, especially citing the achievements of Visiting Nurses. In this area, she especially mentions the work of the visiting nurse for tuberculosis patients and the one for pediatric orthopedic patients. In the school, the work progresses well with the addition of the "Preparatory Course." Also cited is the time on duty in the hospital pharmacy to give instruction on drugs. In addition, there now is a single scholarship award to an exceptional student to pursue post-graduate work. There is the establishment of an entrance fee, the desire -- and need -- for additional staff as the hospital grows. Finally, she speaks of matters outside of the school: the formation of many alumnae groups in nursing, the growth of the course at Teachers' College, Columbia University, the exhibit for the St. Louis Exposition, and gratitude to Mr. Rockefeller to help recovery from the Great Baltimore Fire. Article 3:2:086: A Typhoid Epidemic - June 1904

Creator: Griffin, Elizabeth

Scope and Content: Beginning in October of 1903, the small town of Butler in Pennsylvania suffered a most severe typhoid epidemic. Finally, increased help came into the town and the cause of the epidemic was determined to be in the water resources used by the town. Through the untiring work of the Relief Committee, fresh water supplies were brought in as the contaminated waters were treated. Everything and everyone in the small town was opened to the workers and those in need. There were 1360 cases in this town of 16,000; there were 116 deaths including two doctors and 20 nurses. Creator: Dock, Lavinia

Scope and Content: The writer tells of the accomplishments of a member of the Class of 1894 in establishing a training school for nurses in Naples, Italy. This was achieved by Grace Baxter, Class of 1894, with no government backing, no support, and even protests and antagonism from the physicians. She had support only from one woman, the Princess Strongoli. The writer also tells that the Italian students support themselves during the education, that Miss Baxter has written almost all the textbooks herself in Italian.

Article 3:3:117: Suggestions for Educational Standards for State Registration - August 1904

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: Long article that covers many aspects about establishing nursing education standards beginning with the educational received by the students applying for the schools -- "a suitable preliminary education." She then presents several ways to achieve this needed requirement. She also gives several other needed requirements for entering students, e.g. physical and moral fitness. Next discussed is the length of the nursing education, establishing three years as the necessary length and pointing out that most schools now have the three-year course. She also discusses the length of days and the times of classes vs. work. She discusses the content of the education as well -- medical, surgical, gynecological and obstetrical patients, plus pediatric care. Another point stressed is that instruction should precede the practical work on the units. She stresses the necessity of a Preparatory Course in the many fundamental areas. She then devotes time to explaining in greater detail the contents of these preparatory courses: Household Economics, Anatomy and Physiology, Materia Medica, the Elements of Nursing. Again, in detail, she discusses the education after this Preparatory Period and how it should be carried out. The basis for the entire discussion is to education nurses at a professional level as opposed to merely technical. Article 3:4:204: The Trained Nurse in the Public Schools - November 1904

Scope and Content: Using the successful system of the school nurse in New York as her basis and adding information through a few case studies and statistics, the speaker talks of the advantages of school nurses to the children, their families, the public schools in general, and the general enhancement of education. She also speaks of the emphasis on both the care of the child's illness and the instruction of parents to ensure the carrying out of the care. The speaker hopes that in Baltimore, where up to that moment there has been no progress in this direction, pressure from the community and the medical profession will bring about some positive results from the political bodies. Article 4:2:53: Extract From Dr. Newmayer's Address - May 1905

Scope and Content: Medical inspection of public schools in the United States began in Boston in 1884, joined later by Chicago, New York. Baltimore was one of the earlier cities to join the movement, and Baltimore is to be praised for being the first city to use a nurse in addition to physicians. The inspection includes a sanitary check of the physical environment plus checks on the students in various areas, e.g. vaccinations, skin quality, eye and ear problems. The positive results of such a program have been enormous. The May 1905 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Technical Access Element: Volume #4 Issue #2 pages 53 - 56

Article 4:2:58: Tuberculosis Work in Minneapolis - May 1905

Creator: Jamme, Marie R.

Scope and Content: This is a report of the year old Anti-Tuberculosis group in Minneapolis. The work has been slow, but progress is being made. Two examples are given as to the success of the work. Hindering the work in Minneapolis is that there is neither a private nor public hospital for tuberculosis patients. But the writer is optimistic that the "results of these first hard years (will) begin to show themselves in good round figures."

Technical Access Element: Volume #4 Issue #2 pages 58 - 61

Subject - Name: Jamme, Marie R.

Article 4:2:61: "Materia Medica" in Guam - May 1905

Scope and Content: This article describes the many health problems on the small island of Guam where physicians have been making some progress, but where the author (who is not a nurse) has the work of a nurse with the population, especially the children. Because a naval station is located on the small island, the first attention goes to navy personnel, then the navy doctors help the natives as much as possible. The author gives several case studies to illustrate the diseases prevalent there and the difficulty in improving health.

Article 4:3:107: The Public School Nurse in Baltimore - August 1905

Creator: Hunt, Florence A.

Scope and Content: Marked improvement in the health of school children in Baltimore has been noted since the inspection of schools was started with two physicians and one nurse. The nurse writes of the many problems found, the treatment and follow-up, the improvement of the children's health, and the appreciation and compliance of the parents. During this first four month period, over nine and a half thousand children had been visited and treated. The writer also emphasizes the importance of the visits to the homes.

Article 4:4:182: How We Met the Epidemic of Yellow Fever in New Orleans - November 1905

Creator: Holmes, Ethel A. (1903)

Scope and Content: This is a description of how the people in New Orleans defeated the Yellow Fever bearing mosquito. The writer states that the death rate was much lower than "Northern newspapers" would have people believe. The battle was not only to protect the population, but also to preserve the future of New Orleans in all aspects. She reviews the actions from the first report when the doctor in charge of the Board of Health, being one of the few to believe the source of infection as the mosquito, took measures for sanitation and screening as protection. The measures taken were complicated and many; much of the population was unknowledgable about sanitary and health activities; many doctors and other workers were attacked in their efforts. A new sanitary hospital was created to help with the battle; the people were quickly educated; a new diet kitchen was created. The treatments were many and complicated. The writer speaks very little of her activities during the epidemic, but she called it "interesting" as she took charge of several hospital wards. Article 4:4:188: Tuberculosis Work of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Association of Baltimore - November 1905

Creator: La Motte, Ellen N.

Scope and Content: A visiting nurse for only the tuberculosis patients was funded through the efforts of Mrs. William Osler, thereby relieving other visiting nurses for care of the more acutely ill. Tuberculosis nursing differs from "ordinary" district nursing in that the tubercular patient generally is not bedridden and there is no special treatment to be given. The greater part of the work is instructive and preventive for the patient as well as for his family. The big three categories for instruction are fresh air, food, and prevention. The writer also points out that for elimination of the disease in the state, we need more tuberculosis nurses and proper hospital facilities for advanced cases. Article 4:4:196: Visiting Nursing in Newark, N. J. - November 1905

Creator: Dancy, Charlotte Elizabeth

Scope and Content: This article describes the growth of the visiting nurse service in Newark from its beginning in November 1902. From the single nurse for service to the sick poor and needy, progress has included the addition of two more nurses for those who can pay some of the charges, visits to the schools for children, Day Nurseries, and large department stores, with the addition of factories coming next. The writer concludes that soon visiting nursing will be "well established throughout" the city of Newark.

Article 4:4:197: The First Training School for Nurses in America - November 1905

Creator: Jamme, Anna C.

Scope and Content: The first training school for nurses was founded in 1855 in Boston by a German female physician who had to come to the United States to achieve her medical diploma since Germany did not give this education to women. The first class, organized and carried out by this female doctor, was six nurses who did not receive any diploma for their study. In 1872, the "new" hospital in Roxbury opened and the nurses' training was extended to a year. The school grew and in 1882, the course was extended to 16 months and a superintendent of nurses was employed. The students were under a heavy burden with no living arrangements provided, the number of patients increased. Later, a nurses' home was provided. In 1897, under emergency circumstances, Clara Noyes (JHH 1896) took over and worked through the difficulties to get the school functioning and productive once again. Then Anna Jamme (JHH 1897) took over. The course is now three years long; the 8 hour shift of duty is in force; uniforms and textbooks are supplied students. As the writer concludes, "a preliminary course alone remains to bring up the School to the most advance methods."

Article 4:4:210: Moral and Legal Responsibility of Nurses in the Purchase and Prescribing of Medicine - November 1905

Scope and Content: The entire article by a professor of pharmacy apologetically discusses the impropriety of nurses obtaining medications on their own for patients -- without a doctor's orders. The illegality of it is brought out; the ethical lapse also is emphasized. Although it applies to all medications, most of the article centers on the opiates and the many dangers of this practice. Article 5:1:05: Miss Nutting's Address - February 1906

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: In this speech, Miss Nutting brings up some of the problems facing the profession. First, she addresses the need for more qualified nurses because of the moves to shut out the incompetent nurses who have been giving care to so many lower or middle class patients/families. Next, she brings up the needs of so many "small and special hospitals" that cannot meet the standards set by the Association. Another problem is the excessive load of patients carried by the few Tuberculosis Nurses. Finally, she discusses the need for the PREVENTION of illness, especially among the poor and unknowledgeable. (Portions of the Address read at the Annual Meeting of the Maryland State Association of Graduate Nurses.)

Article 5:1:09: Difficulties of Nursing Contagious Cases in Baltimore - February 1906

Creator: O'Bryan, M. Grace

Scope and Content: Using several case studies for illustration, the writer points out the crucial need for better treatment of patients with contagious diseases, of the need for a Contagious Hospital. Baltimore is far behind many other cities in providing care in this respect. She appeals to all nurses to help remedy the deficit. (Paper delivered at the Annual Meeting of the Maryland State Association of Graduate Nurses, Johns Hopkins Alumnae Association)

Article 5:2:068: The Relation of the Milk Supply to Infant Mortality - June 1906

Creator: Knox, J. H. Mason

Scope and Content: The article addresses the care of infants born to families living in poverty, those infants responsible for the largest infant mortality rates, with fully one-third of the total child mortality due to faulty or the lack of nutrition, along with unhygienic surroundings. However, the overwhelming majority of these deaths are of babies that are bottle fed, often with "impure and dishonest milk." A recent study showed great amounts of bacterial contamination and proposed legislation to force the minimization of such contamination. An example is given of the successful work of a hospital in Nancy, France. In the United States now there are Milk Dispensaries which sell good milk at a nominal cost to the poor. The mortality rate has plummeted. An upcoming exhibit is to be held in Baltimore to help residents realize the importance of good milk and lead to increased resources for good milk for babies affordable by the poorest, thus leading to an even greater reduction in the mortality rate.

Article 5:2:081: The Albany Hospital and Training School - June 1906

Creator: Simpson, Effie

Scope and Content: First, the article describes in detail the physical layout of this hospital built in 1898, with spacious grounds, separate buildings for different specialties with the only department in the nation for mental illness, the recent opening of a pavilion for contagious diseases, closeness to transportation yet distant from the noise of the city. There also is a nurses Training School, and the conditions and courses and other activities are described in detail.

Article 5:2:086: A 15TH Century Hospital - June 1906

Scope and Content: This hospital was built in 1443 and still is managed by nuns dressed in the traditional attire of nuns. It was built by a Chancellor Rolin at the insistence of his wife, Guigone de Salins, who was responding to the effects of the five epidemics of the plague and who also worked in the hospital as a nurse. There is a description of the hospital with its monuments of both religious and healing nature inside. Descendants of the Rolin family still are active with the hospital.

Article 5:2:089: Progress of the Tuberculosis Movement in Maryland - June 1906

Scope and Content: First, the article comments on recent legislation vs. the spread of tuberculosis (including non-spitting ordinances) that the Tuberculosis Commission of Maryland praises very highly. In addition, the legislature has passed two bills giving money for the erection of a State sanitarium and giving money to already existing Eudowood Sanitarium. Also, the already functioning two tuberculosis nurses will be joined by a third who is being funded by the Hopkins Nursing Alumnae Association. There also are two tuberculosis dispensaries, especially valuable in bringing in early cases of tuberculosis. Finally, the report cites the activity of the Maryland Association for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Article 5:2:092: Nursing Care for Those of Moderate Income - June 1906

Creator: Lewis, M. Eleanor Boyer

Scope and Content: There are three groups of patients as far as payment is concerned: the very rich who can afford all costs, the very poor who can afford to pay nothing and are Charity patients, and the majority of patients who are of "moderate income" and can pay part, but not all, of the fee. This article tells of the experiences of a nurse alumna who cared for all, but concentrates on the experiences with those who can afford to pay something, but not all. The writer tells of caring for "factory hands, foundry men, cobblers, and so on, to saloon-keepers and even a Supreme Court Judge" as she adjusted her prices according to ability to pay. She summarizes by writing that the experience was the "most satisfactory work I know."

Article 5:2:099: Miss McMaster On Central Directory - June 1906

Creator: Foard, Virginia Lee McMaster

Scope and Content: In this article an alumna offers arguments against having a Central Registry in Baltimore. She writes there is no demand for one in Baltimore, it is too much work for a single Registrar, unfamiliar nurses will be ignored, partially-trained nurses will be excluded, the preference of the writer to be under "our own Alumnae Association," the development of jealousy between different schools. She concludes that "The time is not yet!"

Article 5:3:121: Miss Nutting's Address On Graduation Day - August 1906

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: Beginning with an earlier quotation that nurses are not considered "professional" because their work is "largely practical," Miss Nutting then proceeds to speak of the new avenues for nurses. At first almost always trained to be "private duty" nurses, now there is a "phenomenal increase in the opportunities" for nurses in institutions and as District and Visiting nurses in the community. With this comes the need for women of greater skill and greater scientific knowledge -- a broader education in nursing. To achieve this increased ability, increased education from trained nursing instructors is necessary. She also points out that the "least expensive" way of caring for patients in hospitals is through the use of students in training schools connected with the hospitals. However, even these schools lack student education in specialties, such as obstetrics and pediatrics. She concludes with the idea for nursing schools giving a complete course of study. Such a school "is the next step forward in the education of nurses."

Article 5:3:131: Extracts from Miss Damer's Address - August 1906

Scope and Content: In this address the speaker emphasizes the role of every nurse not only to care for the sick but, perhaps even more, to become educated in and influential in the prevention of illness and the fostering of health and well-being. She bemoans the fact that while the wealthy and the very poor have access to care, the huge struggling middle class too often is ignored. She also speaks of the need for nurses to join the fight against social ills, the prevention of poverty, the correction of ignorance of the public. All of this is within the scope of nursing. Creator: La Motte, Ellen N.

Scope and Content: The article tells of the mistaken idea that "fresh air" is the best cure for tuberculosis patients in any stage of the disease. The condition of the patients on return to the city disputes this concept. In addition, there is a great danger to the country communities where the patients were sent. The writer uses brief case studies to illustrate all of her points. She concludes that "for advanced cases we need hospitals, not farm houses."

Article 6:1:05: The Treatment of Nervous Diseases. Dr. L. F. Barker - March 1907

Creator: Barker, Lewellys F. (Lewellys Franklin), 1867-1943.

Scope and Content: Nervous diseases are just as real and as serious as other recognized illnesses and are nothing to be ashamed of. With the development of new psychotherapeutic measures, they also now are treatable. The writer divides these nervous disorders into four (4) classes, then discusses the uniqueness and treatment of each. The classes are "Hysteria," "Neurasthenia," "Traumatic Neuroses," and "Psychasthenia." The basic treatments include "truth telling" to the patient, rest, isolation, a proper diet, and psychotherapy. Finally the writer devotes time to "the kind of nurse" needed to provide good care.

Article 6:4:158: Emotion: Its Place and Training - December 1907

Scope and Content: This talk explores the sources of cheerful and depressing emotions coming from within the individual and the importance of how they are handled and of "cultivating cheerful, hopeful, and healthy feelings along with suppressing certain other feelings that are menacing to a whole life. He speaks of the important role of nurses in caring for the patient and the healthy feelings nurses carry with them. (An address given at the Quarterly Meeting, November 19.) #### Article 6:4:167: Moral Support in the Cure of Nervous Diseases - December 1907

Scope and Content: The article begins with a description of a church program in Boston to treat "nervous diseases" with non-physical therapy. This church-sponsored program includes physician specialists for consultation and other assistance. The program is built on two "pillars" -- the highest obtainable scientific skill and religious faith. The patient is taught to "look outside himself" and encouraged by "suggestion" appeal to the sub-conscious. The remainder of the article discusses the logic and principles behind this new medical concept of treatment and the importance of including this aspect of treatment in American medical schools.

Article 6:4:183: Social Service at the Johns Hopkins Hospital - December 1907

Scope and Content: A Social Service Department has been established at Hopkins Hospital with a chief and volunteer workers. The need of so many patients for more or other treatment than medications and medical help has led to the establishment of this new department, with "student boards" holding meetings to assist. The writer also points out the need for including "real training in social work" in medical school instruction just as it is now done in the nurses' training school. Article 6:4:186: Foregrounds and Backgrounds in Work for the Sick - December 1907

Creator: Cabot, Richard C.

Scope and Content: The writer briefly discusses several aspects of giving care: first, one must get happiness in our jobs, in what we do; next, be aware of the humor or pathos and tragedy of the moment and treat them accordingly; the final comments relate to seeing more than the physical needs of the patient, and to consider home conditions and fears that can bring "physical suffering." Article 6:4:188: Paratyphoid Fever - December 1907

Creator: Sladen, Frank J.

Scope and Content: Paratyphoid Fever, because of similar symptoms, often is confused as Typhoid Fever. However, the temperatures are not as high and the prognosis is decidedly better. Diagnosis really rests in the laboratory, not via a microscope, but by other laboratory tests. The source of the infection comes from contaminated food, water, and milk, also from contact factors (blood, flies, fingers).

Article 6:4:190: Notes on New Books - December 1907

Creator: Hurd, Henry M. (Henry Mills), 1843-1927

Scope and Content: The first book reviewed, by Dr. Hurd, is the newly-published nursing classic History of Nursing by Nutting and Dock. It is discussed in glowing terms with the development of nursing traced from its beginnings, giving all the difficulties encountered. Two other books are briefly reviewed: one on Practical Nursing, the other on Primary Nursing Technique. The December 1907 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Scope and Content: After 7 years of publication, this editorial invites all to send in suggestions as well as articles. The next item deals with the "matter of the endowment for the Chair of Hospital Economics at Columbia University" is now a State nursing society; all alumnae are encouraged to send donations for this cause. Next, opinions and suggestions are requested on the matter of "life membership" in the JH Training School Alumnae Association. A paragraph in this section also writes of the move for "an eight-hour day for nurses." Other brief editorial comments are given to a state hearing for a central health building for the state; the listing of the series of health lectures being given in Saturday evenings in Baltimore; announcement that the Alumnae Magazine has been put on the permanent mailing list of the Committee of One Hundred. Subject - Name: Welch, William Henry, 1850-1934.

Article 7:1:05: Progress in the Hospital - March 1908

Scope and Content: The growth in the use of the hospital by the sick had been mirrored by the needed growth in the nursing staff, in the school of nursing and accommodations for the nurses. Principally through a gift from recent graduate Helen Wilmer (Athey) in memory of her father, a new building was erected. The article goes into great detail of the construction of this building and all of its accommodations for the students -- and some graduates. Accompanying the article are six (6) full page black- and-white photos of different areas in the building; also two pull-out diagrams of the floor plans. Article 7:1:13: Public Health with Especial Reference to the Work of the Trained Nurse - March 1908

Creator: Welch, William Henry, 1850-1934.

Scope and Content: In this address Dr. Welch emphasizes that the greatest "triumphs" in health measures lie in Preventive Health, not in treatment of illness after it occurs. To that end a group was formed called "The Committee of One Hundred," a group that has called for the establishment of a national department of health, especially public health. For the nation, the prevention of disease -- as opposed to its treatment -- will save uncalculable amounts of money. Other efforts and achievements of this committee are examined by the speaker. These measures include getting to the public with public lectures on the subject. He also talks of the role of the nurse in this entire movement. Citing tuberculosis, he speaks of the efforts made in this direction. (An Address delivered before the Johns Hopkins Nurses Alumnae Association, February 3, 1908, by William H. Welch, M.D.) The March 1908 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 7:1:21: The International Congress on Tuberculosis - March 1908

Scope and Content: The International Congress on Tuberculosis is meeting in Washington, D. C.

the end of September. All states have been encouraged to participate in these meetings that deals with all areas of tuberculosis: prevention, relief, cure. Interesting to note, also, that Mary Lent, a nurse alumna, is on the list representing Maryland. The March 1908 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 7:1:23: A Recent Development in Preventive Medicine - March 1908

Scope and Content: The article begins with the need for women to be educated in order for them to be a more vital force in community value. The bulk of the article deals with venereal disease, which in women had been treated by imprisonment but which in men tended to be ignored. Finally, the medical field has realized that the link between venereal disease and immorality is not limited to the female. This knowledge is linked by the writer to better education of women -- and the medical men. The March 1908 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Technical Access Element: Volume #7 Issue #1 pages 23 - 25

Article 7:1:25: The Committee of One Hundred - March 1908

Scope and Content: This article gives three of the questions presented at a meeting at Yale University about public health and the answers given to them. The chairman of the committee was Professor Irving Fisher, head of the Committee of the One Hundred. The March 1908 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Technical Access Element: Volume #7 Issue #1 pages 25 - 27

Article 7:1:27: School Housekeeping - March 1908

Scope and Content: The American school buildings are not usually clean buildings and cleaning is irregular and ineffective. In addition, Baltimore has no adequate system in place. The writer feels the problem is increasing as school buildings and school populations increase. She also feels that the solution lay in it being "women's work." The proposition was made that a committee of nurses be formed to study the problem and offer some suggestive conclusions. The March 1908 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 7:1:30: Mrs. Robb at the Nurses' Home - March 1908

Scope and Content: Student nurses met with Mrs. Robb during her recent visit to the hospital, during which she spoke of the beginnings of things at JHH. She mentioned that it was the first Hospital Board of Directors that stated that nursing was to be a "profession," not merely a "trade." There also was praise for the hospital board and for Miss Ross, then the head of the school of nursing. The article ends with an appeal to all our nurses to participate in the proposed portrait of Mrs. Robb. The March 1908 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Creator: Sabin, Florence R.

Scope and Content:

In this talk, the writer presents and discusses three of the many reasons for suffrage for women: justice; the fact that one class cannot legislate fairly for another class (i.e. men will favor their own interests when passing laws); "responsibility develops human nature, and we have come to a stage in history when it is evident that the race needs the development of women" and this is a time in the world when women are vital to the further progress of the world. The writer ends with the statement that "the movement cannot fail." The December 1908 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 8:1:17: The Influence of the Laennec Society - April 1909

Creator: Carr, Ada M.

Scope and Content: Begun in 1900 by Dr. Osler, this group was devoted to improving the lot of the tuberculosis patients in Baltimore, for whom they felt nothing helpful was being done. From their studies was born in 1903 the use of the visiting nurse, the first one being Reba Thelin (Class of 1903). In an early 1902 issue of the Alumnae Magazine the question was presented of how nurses could help with the tuberculosis dilemma and, when a tuberculosis association was formed, several of our nurses participated. Later a State Sanitarium movement began with many other areas of attention coming later. The movement, the article says, all started in Baltimore and was led by Dr. Osler. Article 8:2:54: The Early History of the Hospital and the Training School - June 1909

Creator: Carr, Ada M.

Scope and Content: This article is a very detailed and meticulous account of the establishing of the Johns Hopkins Hospital and School of Nursing with all the people involved. It describes the physical area as originally farmlands, then cemeteries after the Yellow Fever epidemic, then a building as a hospital that changed its focus until it became the MD. Hospital for the Insane. After its purchase by Johns Hopkins, he left the funds and the detailed instructions for establishing a properly staffed hospital, including a new school to supply capable nurses. More land around the area was purchased and the hospital opened in 1889. The article follows with great detail the early school of nursing with the appointment of Isabel Hampton and the admission of the first student nurse, Marion Turner (later Brockway) to changes over the years. At the opening of the school, both Miss Hampton and Dr. Hurd spoke of their aims for the school as not a trade, but as a "Learned profession." The article provides detailed accounts of progress in the hospital as well as in the school. The article is accompanied by a photo of the "Old Hospital Buildings." Creator: Barker, Lewellys F. (Lewellys Franklin), 1867-1943.

Scope and Content: The writer first briefly reviews the earliest days of nursing, the emergence of "modern trained nursing from two wars" (Crimean and U. S. Civil Wars), the development of superior schools in the U.S. with the higher caliber of individuals becoming nurses. He goes into detail about the varied and increasing number of areas for the education of nursing, the need to increase the theoretical or intellectual knowledge as well as the practical ability for nurses. Finally, he discusses the standards which should determine how nurses are paid. (Address given at Graduation Exercises of the Class of 1909)

Article 9:4:187: The Care of Surgical Neurological Cases - December 1910

Creator: Heuer, George J. (George Julius), 1882-1950

Scope and Content: The writer first presents the anatomy of the brain with the function of each section and some of the symptoms in case of damage to that part. He discusses in detail the causes and symptoms of increased intracranial pressure, headache, nausea and vomiting, importance of noting state of consciousness. He also discusses the significance of changes in the pulse and blood pressure, the types and significance of certain focal symptoms, size and equality of eye pupils. He discusses the significance of convulsions, both general and focal. In the same way, he discusses weakness and paralysis, the different types of aphasia. He also presents the position of the patient in bed postoperatively as important, especially in relation to the breathing of the patient, but also for drainage purposes. He devotes time to the importance of safety in bed, in care of the eyes and ears, lips, mouth and throat. He even writes about the type of diet most desirable, the type of clothing to be worn, as well as the use of certain medications. In short, there is very little he does not discuss.

Article 10:1:05: The Site of The Johns Hopkins Hospital - April 1911

Creator: Hurd, Henry M. (Henry Mills), 1843-1927

Scope and Content: This is a very detailed story of the use of the land upon which the Johns Hopkins Hospital now stands. An original small hospital once stood here for the care of the "insane" and for victims of the Yellow Fever epidemic. Later, when the city needed money to maintain the area and that hospital, Johns Hopkins purchased the area and, eventually, the current JHH emerged. Accompanying the article is a drawing of the area and two full page photos of the barren site of the hospital and of the front of the hospital. Finally is a letter from a Dr. Cordell to Dr. Hurd about the original name of the pre-Hopkins hospital located on the site. (A paper presented to the Johns Hopkins Historical Club and repeated to the Teresians in December 1910)

Article 10:1:27: The Recent Diphtheria Epidemic in The Johns Hopkins Hospital - April 1911

Creator: Sladen, Frank J.

Scope and Content: A recent diphtheria epidemic in the hospital involved patients, nurses, doctors, and other employees. The source was a single baby patient in a ward, but -- by the time discovered -- the entire hospital had been involved. The hospital was shut down. Anti-diphtheria medicine was used with great success; in addition, "protective antitoxin" was given to all these patients and to all others exposed. Article 10:1:30: A Post Graduate Course at The Johns Hopkins Hospital - April 1911

Creator: Fox, Elizabeth Gordon

Scope and Content: This is a description of the program at Johns Hopkins for a year of post graduate work. It included work in the surgical supply room, in the kitchen and diet school, in the laundry, in housecleaning. It also included management of the nursing department and the nursing school as well as opportunities to be in charge of hospital patient care units. It points out that the course is a strictly practical one with a minimum of "theoretical work and comparative study."

Article 10:2:65: Dr. W. S. Thayer's Address to the Nurses - June 1911

Creator: Thayer, William Sydney, 1864-1932.

Scope and Content: In this speech to the new graduates, Dr. Thayer first reviews the changes in growth in the hospital and the contributions of Isabel Hampton to the school of nursing, emphasizing her insistence on well-educated women in a school receiving careful training. He proceeds to give his ideas about the qualities of the good nurse including the importance of being an "observer," of demonstrating and teaching prevention of disease, and of optimism. The nurse must be "a woman of more than ordinary ability and alertness, with superior powers of comprehension and judgment, a woman who is able to weigh and digest her experience, who is capable of determining the relative importance of symptoms, -- who is able to bear responsibility." He concludes with the admonition to realize the importance of living up to the Hopkins Nursing School standards.

Article 10:3:101: The International Exhibition of Hygiene - September 1911

Scope and Content: In this article on the first ever exhibition of hygiene, which was held in Dresden, the author (Dr. Lillian West) describes the wonder of the trip, of the city of Dresden, and of the exhibition itself which was undertaken as a "great textbook on Hygiene." It included fifteen large buildings presented by Germany alone, with other buildings from various other foreign nations. She describes in greater details the building called "Der Mensch," devoted to the structure and functions of the human body from its embryonic development to all aspects of living today. Besides the "popular" exhibitions, there also were detailed studies for the scientific experts. Prominence was given to the questions of alcohol problems, sexual diseases, and race hygiene. Creator: Bartlett, Vashti Rebecca

Scope and Content: Altapass is "Settlement I" -- an infirmary built in the mountains of North Carolina to "ameliorate the condition of some three million isolated mountaineers" in the South area of N.C. This is the first of many more such houses to be built to help educate the people living there in living, home-nursing, cooking, housekeeping, etc. The article gives the history of this idea by a former nurse who worked there; it described the building of this first building and the building itself. It uses a few case studies, often with some humor attached, to demonstrate the use of the place and the efforts to cope with local "remedies" and local superstition. Article 10:4:173: A Note from the Waterbury District Nurses' Association. By F. T. McQuaide - December 1911

Creator: McQuaide, Frances Thornton

Scope and Content: Because of the pre-eminence of infant mortality in the statistics of death from preventable diseases, this association started a society aimed at lowering this death rate. In this report, the work of this group is detailed: the nurse visits and the attempts at educating unknowledgeable and uneducated mothers. Article 10:4:178: The Future of the Trained Nurse - December 1911

Creator: Ellicott, Nancy P.

Scope and Content: In this paper, Miss Ellicott, Superintendant of the Rockefeller Institute Hospital, writes of the dilemma of getting the highest quality women to enter nursing which -- as a profession -- offers salaries so low they cannot provide for their future and without the possibility of getting increases for the quality work performed. She calls for nurses with the requisites of "health and youth and vigor," almost an impossibility given the conditions under which they are expected to work and live. She puts before these executives of hospitals the problem of how to remedy the situation. (Paper read at the Annual Meeting of the American Hospital Association, September 1911)

Article 11:2:55: Dr. J. M. T. Finney's Address to the Graduating Class - June 1912

Creator: Finney, John Miller Turpin

Scope and Content: The nurse must combine the physical care of a patient with all other aspects of the patient and his family and their needs. The speaker emphasizes the importance of "kindliness and words of cheer," of the many little things that may be more important than we think. He also emphasizes that what the world calls success may not be as important as the "consciousness" of having done your best, of living up to one's ideals. Article 11:2:65: Caroline Rest and School for Mothers - June 1912

Scope and Content: Among the many groups devoted to the education of mothers, this one in New York (Caroline Rest) seemed to the writer to be unique due to its methods and management. Its main purpose is to provide a place for "needy" mothers to enjoy the rest and advantages of a place to prepared them for going out into their worlds of work again. This includes both prenatal and post natal attention by three nurses from the Home. However, in addition, great emphasis is place on education both of the mothers and the toddlers in attendance. The routine of a single day then is described in detail in the article, and each child is given a toothbrush and told to write when that one is "used up."

Article 11:4:171: The Training of Nurses in Mental Affections - December 1912

Scope and Content: The speaker emphasizes several major points in the education of nurses caring for mental patients. First, he emphasizes the physical derivation of the illness from problems in the brain and the involuntary nature of mental illness. Then, he describes the plan of management of these patients starting from the important instant of admission. He speaks of the physical and mental symptoms being "intextricably woven together" and the importance of "honesty" in the care of the patient. The speaker concludes with his assessment of the very successful results from the special nurse training leading to the very successful treatment of the patients. (From a speech given by Dr. J. Montgomery Mosher to the New York State Nurses Association)

Article 11:4:180: Ballincoona, A Hospital That is to Be - December 1912

Scope and Content: In this speech given to the Hopkins nurses, the speaker, in her delightful Irish style tells of the development of a settlement and a hospital in northern Ireland. The land originally was undeveloped with unliveable bogs; now there is a small town with many small homes, farm animals, a cooperative store, and farming. Although the hospital is incomplete due to lack of funds, there still is nursing and care given to the residents. The hospital will be in Ballincoona, which translates to House of Help.

Article 12:1:24: The Case Against the Anti-Vaccinists - April 1913

Scope and Content: This article refutes three of the scientific objections to people receiving vaccinations vs. smallpox: (1) to those who argue that small pox and cow pox (from which lymph the vaccine is made) are unrelated, the writer states that, indeed, the two diseases ARE related as many scientific studies have shown. (2) to those who argue that there is "no scientific evidence" that vaccination does protect the subject, the writer gives a medical research journal as reference as well as giving copious statistics on the effectiveness of the vaccination in places where the vaccination has been made mandatory (including Baltimore, Germany, and Russia). (3) to those who argue that vaccination is "dangerous," the writer admits there have been cases of infection and death in the past; however, with present laws governing the production and purity of the vaccine, the possibility of infections is almost zero. Technical Access Element: Volume #12 Issue #1 pages 24 - 27

Article 12:1:27: Observation on Sepsis and Antisepsis in Medicine - April 1913

Creator: Thayer, William Sydney, 1864-1932.

Scope and Content: The author laments the neglect of signs of infection and its cause by the medical profession, except for the surgeon who takes proper antiseptic precautions in the operating rooms. He emphasizes protection of the patient, prevention as opposed to treatment of infection, and the importance of separation of the infected person from those without the infection. He especially singles out typhoid fever for his examples. He also mentions the importance of a thorough examination with special attention to the mouth and the tonsils, citing their importance in preventing infections. The April 1913 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Subject - Name: Thayer, William Sydney, 1864-1932.

Article 12:1:32: An Interesting Vacation - April 1913

Scope and Content: The author spent three months in a mining community in Northern Minnesota. The description of the living conditions showed mediocre living conditions for the miners and their families and squalid ones for nearby "squatters." The author worked with "company doctors" in and around the small, well-equipped emergency hospital in the town. She mentioned the advantage that would result with the presence of a public health nurse, of which there was none. The April 1913 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Article 12:2:072: Address By Sir Wm. Osler At The Commencement of The Nurses' Training School - July 1913

Creator: Osler, William, Sir, 1849-1919

Scope and Content: In this speech, Dr. Osler says he has seen nursing and nursing education develop to its present state. He has seen the progression to the educated lady becoming a nurse as opposed to those in the novels of Charles Dickens. He gives his famous story of the selection of Isabel Hampton as first head of the program at Hopkins. Finally, he discusses the seven (7) "virtues" needed to be a nurse, which he names as tact, tidiness, taciturnity, sympathy, gentleness, cheerfulness, and charity. (Speech delivered at the Commencement of the Nurses' Training School, The Johns Hopkins Hospital, May 7, 1913.) The July 1913 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Article 12:2:088: Public Health Nursing Department - July 1913

Scope and Content: The work of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Association of Baltimore has been forced to extend its work into the surrounding counties, due to the great need and demand for it. The current need is for extension of services to the "rural" areas. The report also undertook new work, notably the addition of an eye nurse to care for those patients only. The report also covers briefly the work of the Johns Hopkins Social Service, increase of nurses to work vs. infant mortality, provision of two school nurses. Article 12:3:181: The Immigrant - September 1913

Creator: Fitzgerald, Alice Louise Florence, 1874-1962

Scope and Content: Immigration to the United States has been about 1,000,000 a year and there have been many problems from and for the immigrants. Miss Fitzgerald speaks of several of these and how some have been remedied already. The Civic League has begun work aimed at Transportation, Distribution vs. overcrowding of certain areas, Protection via legislation and Legal Aid, Education and Extension. Article 12:4:217: A State Training School for Girls. By Helen Skipwith Wilmer Athey, 1905 - November 1913

Creator: Athey, Helen S. Wilmer

Scope and Content: This long article establishes that about 2/3 of the girls now in a Reform School are "feeble-minded" and need to be taken from the punitive institution and put into a home for such girls. The writer tells of her different findings in activities in other states. She then proposes a plan to meet the living, educational, and future occupational needs of the residents. She also addresses the spiritual care that is needed. Maryland, she concludes, cannot afford to be without a "modern training school" for girls, that it will be cheaper to train the girls rather than keep them in institutions and jails as it now does. Article 12:4:228: "Seeing New York" by V. M. MacDonald, 1903 - November 1913

Creator: MacDonald, V. May

Scope and Content: This is a brief, and touching, story illustrating the work of a social worker in a "psychopathic ward" of a hospital. The patient in the story is an old lady who came to NY to find some of her old family. She cannot find the old house, she loses her crutches, she loses some purchases until she is finally brought to the hospital. The doctor notifies her son back in Columbus, Ohio and the social worker has an adventure as she finds someone who identifies a single family member still in NY. The social worker convinces this relative to visit and update the woman on the family. Then she is escorted to the station to return to her home. Article 12:4:230: An Experiment in Welfare Work in an Office Building - November 1913

Creator: Wilson, Emma

Scope and Content: This article describes the changes in a new office building in Baltimore in which the social and physical attention to female employees has been made. These "attentions" include separate rest rooms, separate lunch room (devoid of smoke), medical attention and first aid, social and recreational features including a library, reading room, and a gymnasium. Article 13:1:11: New and Essential Points in Maternity Nursing - January 1914

Creator: Hoyt, Margaret Bliss

Scope and Content: The writer begins by saying that there have not been many changes in Maternity nursing for over 50 years since aseptic care during delivery was started. The other changes are in breast care and in a more generous diet. She also points out that a longer interval in feeding the infants -- from two hours to three to four -- is now more generally adopted.

Article 13:1:15: Maryland Bureau of Statistics and Information - January 1914

Creator: Rose, Marie L.

Scope and Content: Although one function of this state Bureau is to compile statistics, necessity has made it center on the observance of Child Labor laws, with the focus on the age of the child and the compliance with the law which states that a child must be between age 12 to 15 years, a section of the law that has led to families' lying about their children's ages. The writer laments the lack of education of the children, but has some optimism since the passing of the new Compulsory School Attendance Law and the new Child Labor Law. At the conclusion she mentions some of the horrible conditions found in local canneries and the "illegal exploitation of children in the actual work in these canneries."

Article 13:2:46: Shall We Open Our Registry to Other Graduates? - April 1914

Creator: Miller, Ella M.

Scope and Content: This article -- actually a presentation at the Quarterly Meeting of the Nurses' Alumnae Association -- presents the arguments in favor of allowing graduates of other schools of nursing to join the Hopkins Registry. These arguments include principally that we need the increased numbers of members to respond to patients' needs. Also, the money earned by the Registry is important as is the fact that when our graduates go to other cities for private duty work they are permitted to register on the Registries of those cities. Article 13:2:52: Who is a Nurse and by What Signs Shall You Know Her? - April 1914

Creator: Noyes, Clara D.

Scope and Content: This article first tells the history of the growth of training schools for nurses with the growth in the need for nurses and the broadening of the role of nurses. With this has come the proliferation of programs offered in newspapers and magazines for rapid home training with the graduates calling themselves "nurses," yet without ever being with an ill patient. The author calls for activity by all nurses from real schools of nursing to push for state and national laws defining the basic requirements for calling oneself a "nurse."

(3) Henry Hurd writes of concern about women who now enter nursing due to "untoward circumstances" as opposed to Florence Nightingale who felt the need for more than her life of ease and wealth when she led the way to "modern" nursing. (Accompanying this editorial is a page containing two photographs of parts of the Cloisters of Santa Croce in Florence, Italy where a memorial to Florence Nightingale has been established. The Frontispiece photograph accompanies this editorial as well.)(4) A brief announcement about the upcoming celebration of the opening of the hospital with the hope expressed that all nurse alumnae will join the celebration. (5) The Association Library has had very slow growth over its 10 years and the cause of this is lack of money. This, then, is an appeal for more money and more books.

Article 13:4:206: Opportunities for Original Work in the Improvement of Hospital Appliances - October 1914

Creator: Ellicott, Nancy P.

Scope and Content: Nurses have wonderful opportunities to develop innovations to improve the provision of patient care directly or by making it easier or quicker for nurses to provide that care. The author cites putting beds on large wheels so nurses can move them easily by themselves, having screens to put between beds to allow for privacy, a single source of clean linen plus a large laundry bag for soiled linen in a central location during morning baths, a food cart on wheels with heated shelves for delivery and distribution of meals to patients (rather than carrying one tray at a time from a kitchen). The writer feels that nurses are in a perfect position to bring about these improvements as opposed to just accepting the old ways.

Article 13:4:221: Hospital Social Service - October 1914

Creator: Brogden, Margaret Smith, 1865-1944

Scope and Content: Started by a single nurse at Massachusetts General Hospital in 1905, public health nursing is now found in many hospitals throughout the country in a pivotal role in the prevention of illness and the maintenance of health of citizens. At JHH, the Social Service department, established in 1907, is "the center toward which all branches lead," this statement followed by the explanatory description of its work, made more vivid with several case studies. The paper also gives a lengthy description of all the work of this department. Another point emphasized is that nurses need education beyond regular nursing school education to function in public health service. Article 13:4:231: Nursing in the Henry Phipps Psychiatric Clinic - October 1914

Creator: Taylor, Effie J.

Scope and Content: Too often mental patients are not seen until they require hospitalization; the clinic aims to see patients and help them before they get to that stage of their mental illnesses. Following the work of the clinic the author proceeds to the in-patient units in the psychiatric specialty with the rapid influx of admissions creating many difficulties, which she describes. She then describes the two-month education course for the student nurses. Finally, she goes into the differences between illness of the body and of the mind as she also speaks of some of the opportunities in the program. Article 14:1:06: The Work of the Johns Hopkins School for Nurses - January 1915

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: Beginning with the influence of Florence Nightingale and the establishment of the school of nursing at Bellevue Hospital in New York City, the author moves to the opening of the school of nursing at Johns Hopkins continuing the concept of nursing schools as educational rather than merely apprentice facilities, with the continuing favorable medical trends brought about by this change of concept. She stresses the philosophy brought to the school by its first superintendent, Isabel Hampton, and all of the many beneficial changes brought by Miss Hampton. She also gives much credit to Lavinia Dock who influenced the school for many years. She cites the growth of the school as well as many of its graduates who have made such great contributions to many areas of the health field. She writes of the significance of the Alumnae Association. Finally, she writes of the several problems still confronting schools of nursing, giving great emphasis to the need for a private endowment, citing a hospital's inability to fund an educational school of nursing. Article 14:2:089: The Latest and Best Methods of Administering Anaesthetics - April 1915

Creator: Buckler, H. Warren (Humphrey Warren)

Scope and Content: The article admits to the dangers of using anesthetics, then goes into the "fundamental principles" for all who are in this specialty. First is the "uniform regulation of the dosage," this in order to prevent the many undesirable side effects. The second principle is the control of the air supply and the use of a breathing tube to insure adequacy of air supply. The third principle is warming the anesthetic to body temperature. The writer then goes into detail about the different choices for the anesthetic to be used. Finally, he writes of the possibility that properly trained nurses could administer anesthetics.

Article 14:2:095: Lip Reading for the Adult Deaf - April 1915

Scope and Content: The author of this article, Avondale Gordon, is introduced by Dr. Henry Hurd as a registrar of the Johns Hopkins Medical School who had to resign because of a growing deafness, accompanied by depression. She went to Boston to attend a school for lip reading for the deaf. Upon her return, she was so much improved that she was asked to write this article on the Muller-Walle Method of Lip Reading for the Adult Deaf. In the article, Miss Gordon writes of the despair experienced when one learns deafness is approaching; the sharpening of the other senses when hearing is depleted, including intuition. The course of 30 lessons is described in general, including what is considered a "natural talent" as well, the importance of a good general education, the power of concentration, and good physical condition in general.

Creator: Hurd, Henry M. (Henry Mills), 1843-1927

Scope and Content: In this presentation, Dr. Hurd first compares the attitudes toward and the care of the mentally ill forty-five years before when he first became involved with this type patient. He writes in detail of the differences between then and the current time in the "repressive" care given then and the present caliber and training of the nurses. He also emphasizes that the patient is not a set of symptoms or a disease but an individual human being with certain needs. He concludes by telling his audience of student nurses that they are joining a profession, not a trade or a "method of earning a living." (An address given at Sheppard and Enoch Pratt Hospital for student nurses on May 19, 1915.)

Article 15:1:09: Report of the Tuberculosis Nurses' Division of the Baltimore Health Department - February 1916

Creator: Ford, Eleanor Jones

Scope and Content: Detailed report of the statistics, the activities of the year with public health care of patients with tuberculosis in their homes or in "institutions," a school for tubercular children and the campaign to prevent the spread of the disease to well children (pioneered in Baltimore), the positive experience with a large private corporation of the inspection of the employees for tuberculosis, with suggestions for more healthy living conditions for the underprivileged and in schools, the case for a central hospital for tubercular cases. A stunning statistic is that the 16 nurses employed have cared for 11,795 patients in 379,178 visits over the past five (5) years. The article also gives the lack of thoroughness in the work because of the huge work overload. The writer also discusses some suggestions for increased efficiency and effectiveness with the many "pros" and "cons" for each.

Article 15:2:066: The Educational Function of a Hospital - May 1916

Creator: Smith, Winford H., 1877-1961

Scope and Content: The hospital which at first was the care of patients now has a larger role in education: of medical students, nurses, lab workers, the public. He enlarges on the role of the hospital in nurse education, which originally was established for the purpose of cheap labor in caring for patients, but now should have a much broader goal. He cites Bellevue School of NY in having the proper view, as opposed to most of the other hospitals in the country. The need for real education of nurses is essential for the increased and varied needs of the public in care and instruction. He also feels that this type of broader education for nurses belongs in the hospitals, just as does the education of physicians in their medical schools.

Article 15:2:078: The Values of the Niceties of Nursing - May 1916

Creator: Saxton, Mary Howard

Scope and Content: All patients appreciate the little things that are done in their care, the small details not only for "patients of refined sensibilities" but also by "those of coarser temperaments." Mentioned are a single flower on a food tray, drinks that are supposed to be cold being served cold, tidiness in bed linen, toiletries, etc. Although written to apply to private patients, the writer intends that it apply to all patients to enhance recovery.

Article 15:2:081: A Letter From the Training School Endowment Fund Committee and the Treasurer's Report - May 1916

Scope and Content: This letter from the Endowment Fund Committee very clearly explains the reasons for an endowment fund for schools of nursing in order to provide for the education of the student nurses as the primary goal of the school as opposed to the hospital's primary goal of care of the patients. To achieve the financial goal, this letter states the need for everyone to help and to obtain help from outside sources. In addition to the letter, the current financial report is included in the article.

Creator: Fortune, Martha Alice; La Motte, Ellen N.; Robertson, Bessie Beck

Scope and Content: There are three articles in this section. First, a long article by Ellen La Motte, reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly, from France describes vividly and in detail the frequent bombings in the town as she and others awaited their move to the being-constructed hospital in Belgium, as her reaction turned from amazement to genuine fear as she realized that the bombings came in series, not simply a single one. Next is a letter from Bessie Robertson from Great Britain describing her work with a War Surgical Supply Depot in Glasgow. Finally comes a letter from Martha Fortune describing the wait in England of her and several other Hopkins nurses in the unit until a decision is made where they will be sent to care for incoming wounded. Creator: Athey, Helen S. Wilmer; Baker, Bessie; Bean, Mary Cloud, 1868-1953

Scope and Content: (1) A letter from "M.C.B." writing as the only female and only nurse to be present at a ceremony in London, England honoring Edith Cavell by the creation of "The Nurse Edith Cavell Home." (2) The announcement of the appointment of Alice Fitzgerald, Class of 1906, as the Edith Cavell Memorial Nurse, along with excerpts from several letters asking for action to prevent Cavell's execution by the German Military, a second letter explaining why a memorial to her is planned, and a third one from Alice Fitzgerald expressing thanks for her appointment. (3) A long section by H. S. W. Athey opposing a recent government movement to increase spending for greater "preparedness" against invasion and proposing the additional spending for other national needs. (4) From the American Red Cross comes this brief article about a recent proposal by the Army Medical Corps for establishing hospitals in several American cities for the care of soldiers wounded in the war. (4) From the Johns Hopkins Hospital comes a brief announcement of the formation of a JHH Base Hospital Unit in case of our entry into the War.

Creator: Welch, William Henry, 1850-1934.

Scope and Content: In this address, Dr. Welch addresses several aspects of nursing and nurses' training. First, he emphasizes that nursing is a separate profession as opposed to being subservient to the medical profession. Then, he speaks of the enlarged areas of health with all the specialties to be served by nurses. He emphasizes the need for nursing education to be all-inclusive before specialty work is pursued, of the need for an excellent base of knowledge. Finally, he endorses the need for a private endowment for schools of nursing.

Article 15:4:248: How Much Time Should Be Allowed for Specialization During the Training School Course? - November 1916

Creator: Lawler, Elsie M.

Scope and Content: Nurses in many of the specialties have complained that preparation for these specialties should be included in training school education. Miss Lawler discusses the problem and the many reasons not to include such training in the existing curriculum. In the summary by another participant at the convention meeting, it was concluded that such specialized education could not be included due to time constraints, that the training school should be considered the "elementary school from which the nurses must go on to the higher school to become the specialist." The training school, however, must be as broad as possible to provide the excellent foundation for later specializing. Article 15:4:258: Why Does the Nurse in the General Hospital Need Training for Mental Work? - November 1916

Creator: Taylor, Effie J.

Scope and Content: Because the brain and the body are two parts to the complete whole, therefore "mental" study is as essential to nurses' education as is the condition and problems of a physical nature. And, since prevention of mental or emotional aberration is such an integral part of general nursing, it follows that student nurses must get mental training in order to recognize these mental aberrations. The "how" this can be achieved in a curriculum is not solved in this address; rather, the conclusion is that it must be included somehow. Article 15:4:272: From the War Zone - November 1916

Creator: La Motte, Ellen N.; MacInnes, Mary Stuart

Scope and Content: This section contains three (3) personal accounts of service and experiences in overseas during World War I. The first, from a hospital in London and using a graphic case study, tells of the symptoms and treatment of the physical and mental condition called "shell shock." The second is the story of a nurse at a military hospital as she tries to find the difference between the soldier who tried to commit suicide and four others who were wounded in "action," finally concluding the only difference was "physical endurance," as demanded by superiors. The third account is a short continuation of an article begun in the previous issue of the Alumnae Magazine and deals primarily with the nursing staff under the direction of Grace Baxter, class of 1894 at the American Hospital in Florence, Italy.

Article 16:1:05: American Red Cross Bureau of Nursing Service - February 1917

Creator: Noyes, Clara D.

Scope and Content: Beginning with the organization of the Red Cross with its various officers and divisions, the writer progresses to the delay in establishing the American division of the Red Cross and its duties and responsibilities since the war began in 1914. She details the areas served by Red Cross nurses then, always with an emergency detachment of ten. It also serves as an advisory board for the active nurses in the ward as well as an educational group. Finally, she writes of those nurses overseas in the actual war zone and the work there.

Article 16:2:72: Text-Books for Nurses - May 1917

Creator: Fleming, Isobel M.

Scope and Content: This article presents a discussion of the use of textbooks for nurses from several angles. First, there should not be many textbooks and the author emphasizes the probable importance of Anatomy-Physiology and Materia Medica texts. Next, she writes of what reference books are available and desirable. Then, she addresses the subject of "What Constitutes a Good Text-Book" and emphasizes that the scientific principles presented must be true. She also writes of a group of questions regarding text-books, including how and why nurses should be writing for nurses. Finally, she emphasizes that no text-book should stand alone as a way to teach students, but that the instructor who correlates the theory and practice presented holds the all-important task for effective learning.

Article 16:2:79: An English Nursing Home - May 1917

Scope and Content: The writer was in London when she was told she needed an operation. She writes of her feelings being away from home and "obliged to go to a nursing home for which I had such a dread." Her experience at the specific "nursing home" at which she had her surgery and her care during recovery was far different from her expectations. She was in a lovely room with attractive wallpaper, she received excellent care and compassion. In comparing her care there with American hospitals, she concluded tht the Americans were more efficient, but the British had "more elasticity and a more friendly element." Creator: Goodrich, Annie W.; Lathrop, Julia C.; Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948;
Wald, Lillian D.

Scope and Content: The purpose of the Committee on Nursing of the General Medical Board of the National Council of Defense is to "institute effective measures to increase the supply of nurses for home as well as for war defense." The article consists mostly of two (2) letters about the work of the committee. One letter is from Miss Nutting; the other signed by four (4) members of the committee. Both write of the need for long-term solutions, the efforts to reach college-trained women, and the results up to that time.

Article 16:4:228: The Nurse and Infectious Diseases - November 1917

Scope and Content: Rather than use the commercial and advertised disinfectants, rather than worry about complex treatments, and rather than keeping patients with infectious diseases isolated, the way to combat infectious diseases and their spread is by preventive care (vaccinations, etc.) and routine cleanliness (handwashing, etc.) The author gives information on a myriad of infectious diseases (e.g. diphtheria, typhoid, measles, etc.). (Address given to American Nurses Association by Dr. George W. Goler.)

Article 16:4:235: The Care of Prospective Mothers - November 1917

Creator: Slemons, J. Morris (Josiah Morris), 1876-1948

Scope and Content: The increased care of the mother in pre-natal, during delivery, and in post-natal care has had several advantages: decrease in infant mortality by half, reduction in mortality of mothers, improvement in the health of children immediately after birth and later, decrease in "the suffering from female troubles after childbirth." The author enlarges on these facts by describing the work of the Women's Clinic at Yale Medical School.

Subject - Name: Muldrew, Gertrude

Article 17:2:58: Editorials - May, 1918

Scope and Content: (1) Congratulations to Gertrude Muldrew, 1904, on her recently being awarded by King George in England of the "Royal Red Cross of the First Class." (2) Although there is a large demand by the Red Cross for nurses, this is a plea that nurses in several categories should stay at home at their present posts. (3) Red Cross Army and Navy nurses need to be assigned rank in order to provide more efficient services. (4) Finally, the government is working to reduce infant mortality and this gives a brief summary of the different efforts being made. (5) This editorial thanks Dr. Howard Kelly for his donation of letters of Florence Nightingale, to Adelaide Nutting and Yssabella Waters for financial contributions to the Endowment Fund. (6) Increased donations of Liberty Bonds have been received for the Endowment Fund. The May 1918 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 17:2:61: Journal Notes from France - May, 1918

Creator: Slemons, Anna Goodstill

Scope and Content: This is a fairly detailed account of the experiences of a nurse alumna who volunteered for a mission to France during the War to learn what the Red Cross could do "toward the welfare of infants and children" at that time. During the oceanic crossing, there was a battle with an enemy submarine. In England, she attended the "War Service" at Westminster Abbey, along with the King and Queen, on the third anniversary of the war. On a day at Oxford, she visited with Dr. Osler who had new responsibilities because of the war. Once in France, she helped develop clinics and care for refugee children and to find personnel plus equipment for these activities. At the end of the trip, she visited the Hopkins Base Hospital and enjoyed seeing familiar faces from home.

Article 17:3:093: War-Time Problems of the Nursing Profession - August, 1918

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: In this speech, Miss Nutting discusses the problem that, with so many nurses volunteering to serve with the Red Cross and Army, there is a desperate shortage of the nurses qualified to teach and train the surging numbers of students in the schools of nursing. She speaks of the use of "trained volunteers," given short courses in care as creating a huge problem later. She proposes a system where those especially trained in teaching and public health stay in the civilian field so that not only our soldiers, but also the public, are sufficiently served. (This is an address before the American Nurses' Convention, 1918.)

Article 17:3:100: The Training Camp for Nurses, Vassar College - August, 1918

Creator: Wolf, Anna Dryden

Scope and Content: To increase the number of nurses during World War I and to increase the number of women of high intellect becoming nurses, this is one of several "training camps" associated with colleges established during the war. The author reviews the subjects taught, the physical set-up, how the lack of a "standardization of technique" in different schools has created some difficulty in teaching. She also gives the daily schedule for the day which includes time for physical exercise in a variety of ways. She concludes with the statement that "The best thing about this camp is the splendid cooperation of everyone concerned."

Scope and Content: This article is a verbatim account of the hearing in the U.S. House of Representatives about the need for official rank for nurses serving in the Army. The reason given was specific: the nurses need rank so that soldiers (e.g. corpsmen) will obey their orders, which currently they did not. The discussion is detailed, with many congressional questions and testimony from some physicians and nurses.

Article 17:3:118: Military Rank for Army Nurses - August, 1918

Creator: Greeley, Helen Hoy

Scope and Content: This is a passionate explanation by the lawyer representing the nurses for the granting of "relative rank" to nurses in the Army Nurse Corps. She explains that military men tend to obey only when the request/order comes from an officer. She states that the discord that comes from this negatively affects the care received by our soldiers. She writes that the bill will come up for vote later in the year and urges support for its passing.

Article 18:1:05: The Relation of the War Program to Nursing in Civil Hospitals - February, 1919

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: This is a long article about the problems for nursing in the civilian population brought on by the exodus of nurses for service in World War I and about the efforts to overcome these. Through the establishment of a new ANA Committee of Nursing, Council of National Defense and the cooperative U.S. Department of War, using publicity and innovative ideas, small schools of nursing as well as the larger ones have enjoyed an increase in qualified nursing students. This has provided extra War Nurses as well as providing quality care in civilian hospitals. The February 1919 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 18:1:16: Nesle Memories - February, 1919

Scope and Content: This long account by Dr. John Baldwin gives a detailed account of establishing care for the population of a small town called Nesle, located just north of Paris -- a town recently fled by the conquering German army who ransacked the town, took all supplies and food, destroyed buildings, grabbed most of the able men and women to go with them. Starting from rubble alone, make-shift care centers were developed, clinics were established, trust from the people was gained, only to have bombing and more fighting forcing a move from town to town, adjustment after adjustment. The writer devotes much space to the heroism of individual people and groups. The February 1919 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 18:2:51: Reconstruction and the American Nurse - May, 1919

Creator: Noyes, Clara D.

Scope and Content: After peace was declared for WWI, the biggest need was for helping these wartime nurses to re-enter civilian life and supplying civilian hospitals and Public Health with adequate staffing. To that end, the Red Cross established an Information Bureau. To further assist Public Health Nursing, the Red Cross is launching a nationwide educational campaign. The article also contains "how-to" information for nurses being released from military service plus statements about the future of nursing in the country.

Article 18:2:58: An Outline of the Work of Our Nursing Unit - May, 1919

Creator: Baker, Bessie

Scope and Content: This account tells of the setting up of the Base Hospital 18 after the ocean voyage, the nurse accommodations, the work that could be slight or -- more often -- so busy a single nurse could have 50-55 patients on her own. At times, members of the Base Hospital were at the front, so work back at the hospital was more intense. The article closes with a tribute (translated from the French) from a group of school children in the town of Lavenay on the 4th of July. Also included are small photographs of the two nurses who died in France, during the war

Article 18:2:61: Sidelights on Life with a "Shock Team" - May, 1919

Creator: Bowling, Gertrude H.

Scope and Content: In this account, the writer tells of nursing at the "front" as opposed to nursing back at the base hospital and the extreme differences between the two. Shortly after arriving they saw the destruction of the active war and the very busy operating rooms -- and several Hopkins nurse alumnae on duty. Moving farther "up the lines" to typical army chow. At an old chateau, the group prepared for their work at a "Shock Team," or the care of patients too sick or wounded to be sent back to safer care. Then they moved up even more during the battle of Chateau Thierry. They witnessed the truth of the "much talked about Hun vandalism." They experienced violent air raids, land raids, and gas attacks. The writer also gives several examples of the courage of ordinary soldiers who could retain a sense of humor although grievously wounded. Article 18:2:70: Experiences with a "Shock Team" - May, 1919

Creator: Stock, Pauline B.

Scope and Content: This is an account of the experiences of a nurse who served with a group of medical personnel about 10 miles from the Front at Chateau Thierry and were the first to receive wounded soldiers. Their patients were those soldiers whose acute conditions forbade transportation to the safer "hospitals" for surgery. Most of the soldiers were in "shock," hence the name of the "Shock Team." The article describes the initial care given to the wounded with the goal of getting them to the "safer hospitals" farther back. The writer also cites the bravery of the entire group, as well as the constant air raids by the enemy. The May 1919 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 18:2:73: Experiences with an "Operating Team" - May, 1919

Creator: Cushman, Ruth

Scope and Content: This is an account of the experience of a nurse who worked as part of an operating team in makeshift operating rooms close to the fighting front during WWI. The writer tells of the havoc and destruction found all over, the nightly bombing of the area and the city of Chalon, the constant moving from one area to another, the work in tents with improvised operating rooms. Even after eight weeks of this and the ordered return to the Base, the writer states her eagerness to return to it again. The May 1919 issue that contains this article has been digitized. Creator: Lowe, Emma Wood

Scope and Content: This article gives an account of the various medical and social services in and around Jerusalem. The hospital was started and run by Frances McQuaide, 1905, and included a training school for native student nurses who then staffed the hospital. There was a Babies Hospital, a day nursery, a laboratory, and a government hospital for infectious diseases (this having been "resurrected" by another nurse), two large orphanages, and an employment bureau. Article 18:4:201: Program of Health Education - November, 1919

Creator: Rose, Marie L.

Scope and Content: The Child Health Organization was started by physicians after World War I when it was found how many drafted men were rejected for health reasons. Studies showed the effect of poor nutrition among school age children. The efforts of the organization were directed to teachers in schools because of the close contact between teachers and their students. To this end, efforts were directed for health education for teachers to relate to their students. The article also tells of what equipment (e.g. scales), procedures (e.g. monthly weighings), and other assistance (e.g. health training classes taught in teachers' colleges) the organization has provided.

Article 19:2:42: Social Reconstruction and the Medical Profession - May, 1920

Scope and Content: Science alone cannot rule the universe, but must be accompanied by human emotion and humanity. The writer states that, indeed, this rule of science is what steered Prussia to start WWI and be destroyed by its error. He states, also, that most of the medical profession are "immature as citizens," which has surprised him. He then writes of the emotions needed for full humanity and that the leaders must recognize the role and importance of these emotions and use them to create the better future for "our children's sake." He recognizes that physicians are one group on whom this leadership will fall in the reconstruction of the world after the World War just ended. (Article by Sir Auckland Geddes and reprinted with permission from the "Anniversary Volume" published in honor of Sir William Osler's 70th birthday, July 12, 1919)

Also included is a full page photograph of Sir William Osler with two colleagues at his birthday celebration.

Article 20:3:112: The American Nurse: Her Past, Present and Future - August 1921

Scope and Content: Using Mass. General School of Nursing as his model, the speaker gives a lengthy and documented report of the first years of nursing education in 1874 and compares it to the present time (1921). He then draws four broad conclusions: "Trained nursing as a profession...is an essential element of our civilization"; the scope of nursing has broadened immensely; the recognition by hospitals of their important function of training nurses; conditions of work for nurses in hospitals "is much easier than in 1872." The speaker develops this progress in detail, highlighting the contributions of the Hopkins program.

Creator: Athey, Helen S. Wilmer; Cullen, Mary Bartlett Dixon; Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: (1) The opening of two (2) collegiate schools of nursing at Yale and Western Reserve has created a new era in nursing education with schools of nursing having the same relationship with universities as Medical Schools have enjoyed. (2) Over two-thirds of the needed funds have been provided for the expansion plans of the hospital. The editor looks forward to some time in the future when the school of nursing will have obtained its one million dollar endowment fund. (3) Brief notification of the address to which to send pledges to the nurses' endowment fund. (4) Report of the Gate House chairman accompanied with the plea for more donations of products to sell at the shop. (5) Two alumnae recently have delivered radio talks: one on public health nursing, the other on nursing as a profession. The second talk is printed in this issue. (6) Announcement about the yearbook to be published by senior class is accompanied by encouragement to alumnae for its purchase and by the offer of assistance to the class. (7) At the February meeting the suggested regulations for the Hopkins graduate uniform were accepted. The May 1923 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 22:3:074: Editorials - August, 1923

Scope and Content: (1) The endowment and subsequent creation of the Yale University School of Nursing has made it more essential to obtain our endowment goal and to have all parts of "the Hopkins" push for collegiate status. (2) Three JHH School of Nursing alumnae have been appointed to positions in the new Yale University School of Nursing. (3)Praise for retiring president Hester Frederick and incoming president Claire Craigen. (4) Highlights of this issue of the magazine especially regarding Homecoming and the Annual Meeting . (5) Hospitals frequently have been founded by "idealists." The editorial describes a new small hospital in Crisfield on the Eastern Shore, built as a memorial to the donor's husband, child, and nurse killed in an accident. (6) Figures from the 1920 census are given, with a "complaint" that mothers/homemakers are called "no occupation." (7) Welcome to the Class of 1923 as our newest alumnae.

Article 23:1:11: Industrial Nursing - February, 1924

Creator: Obenchain, Jeanette Brown

Scope and Content: The writer admits that industrial nursing is viewed with suspicion by many employees who distrust managements's "gifts." She stresses the importance of preventive care or care of minor needs to reduce the need for treatment of major problems. She also stresses the role of the nurse as almost an employee confidante in detection of work and home problems that can be remedied. While this field "does not offer anything of a spectacular nature," the author maintains the work can be most gratifying and worth the effort.

Article 24:1:05: On Nursing Education - February, 1925

Creator: Pfefferkorn, Blanche

Scope and Content: The author laments the current situation of "nursing education" as being "vocational training," an "apprenticeship system." She reviews what the contents of professional education should be with the ends of educational and creative goals as opposed to service production. She then discusses admission requirements, educational parts of curriculum, and practice side of the curriculum. Finally, she discusses the means of achieving these goals, principally the university school of nursing, as well as the funding of these schools.

Article 26:1:04: The Chair of Nursing at the University of Virginia - February, 1927

Creator: McLeod, Josephine

Scope and Content: A Chair of Nursing in honor of Sadie Heath Cabaniss, Class of 1911, has been established at the University of Virginia. The idea and the process of this is detailed in the article. Taking up most of the article, however, is the reprint of an editorial in the Richmond News Leader at the time of Miss Cabaniss's death in 1921. The last paragraph of this editorial cites the reasons for calling Cabinnis among the "great pioneers of the commonwealth." She developed the first nursing education program, began the Nurses Settlement for treatment of the poor, helped this develop into the IVNA in Virginia, started rural public health, started the legal professionalization and certification of nurses in the state.

Article 26:1:10: Taking Stock of Ourselves - February, 1927

Creator: Nutting, M. Adelaide (Mary Adelaide), 1858-1948

Scope and Content: A 1925 Review by the Rockefeller Foundation presents the nurse as the "storm center" of various complaints about nurses by the public, physicians, and hospitals, claiming nurses have lost the "Florence Nightingale spirit of sacrifice and service." In order to obtain sufficient and objective data, studies are being made to get concrete information from nurses on their activities. Miss Nutting suggests that the JHH Alumnae Association conduct its own study to add to the other data.

Article 26:1:15: Facts and Hearsay in Private Duty Nursing - February, 1927

Creator: Schouten, Irene Burch

Scope and Content: A recent study in New York has shown that from 30% to 50% of private duty nurses are entering other fields, a situation that seems typical of other parts of the country. The article touches on the poor pay, the costs of private duty, the long hours of duty, no increases in salary for experience, the dangers to her own health. As yet, despite study by physicians, no solution has been found although some suggestions have surfaced. Among these are "centralization of nursing resources under one clearing house," group nursing, an hourly nursing plan. Also, however, there has been a decrease in demand for private duty nurses. The conclusion is that a solution must be found.

Article 27:2:57: Nursing in Greece - June 1928

Creator: Vanspronssen, Helen Porter

Scope and Content: The previous and historical Greek prejudice against nursing and nurses is being slowly dissolved because of the efforts of Queen Sophia and because of the great need for nurses, especially in public health. The writer then deals specifically with the education at the Polyclinic school. She consistently emphasizes that most of the education is of the vocational type, but the future is more promising. Article 27:4:181: The Hospital as a College for the Student Nurse - November 1928

Creator: Richards, Esther Loring, 1885-1956

Scope and Content: Training for the nurse was opposed originally because of the idea that the nurse worked FOR the physician rather than WITH him, that training would lead to the nurse requiring reasons for performing her role, "that the cultivation of ignorance has always been considered a safeguard of power." Dr. Richards writes that nursing is a profession and therefore must develop on its own using the "hospital as a college." She discusses building the policies of nursing education on certain constructive lines from the selection of appropriate candidates to their individual adjustment to her practice, the use of the "laboratory method" of learning. (Commencement address delivered June, 1928)

Article 28:3:088: Professional Responsibility - August 1929

Scope and Content: This speech points out several important needs for new nurses, including the need to gain experience as a graduate before going into further education or specialties, that without those experiences one may accept all theory as fact in all cases. She also speaks of three specific dangers: that we think graduation opens unlimited doors of opportunity without further education and preparation, that all schools for women may suffer "financial strangulation," that we still must not forget the need for further study and preparation. She speaks, too, of the need for research, just as we need vocational guidance after graduation. She finally speaks of the needs of a profession and the qualities needed to advance these. Digital Content: Yes

Article 30:1:02: Editorials - February 1931

Scope and Content: (1) After having a "dearth" of nurses around World War I, now there seems to be serious unemployment problems for nurses. Some of the editorial questions if this is due to uneven placement of jobs; another part of the editorial deals with the Hopkins' educated private duty nurse. (2) Twenty-one (21) states have been seriously affected by the drought and the Red Cross needs help to meet their needs. This is difficult because so much was given to meet the needs of World War I that people no longer have the resources to contribute.

Article 30:1:05: Faculty Attitudes Towards the Pupil Nurse - February 1931

Creator: Richards, Esther Loring, 1885-1956

Scope and Content: The article discusses the two psychological mechanisms involved in decision-making: the use of reason pro and con about the matter, consideration of the emotional factor in the individual matter. The discussion narrows in on the head nurse-student nurse relationships. The article then enlarges its scope to a general discussion of finding the causes of aberrant or less-than-desirable behavior.

Article 59:2:23: The Future of Nursing - April 1960

Creator: Fox, Samuel L., M.D.

Scope and Content: As the roles of nursing have become diversified and often away from patient care, it is necessary that nursing establish itself as a full profession, away from the control by physicians and hospital administrators. The writer discusses nursing as an "education," not a "training," the need for collegiate programs requiring tuition. The conclusion proposes the end of the 3-year program; the affiliation with universities; the training of "clinical nurses" rather than "practical nurses"; the support of physicians and hospital administrators to support the changes. The April 1960 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.

Article 59:2:28: The Beginning of the Evolution of Collegiate Education in Nursing - April 1960

Creator: Bridgman, Margaret

Scope and Content: From the graduate courses first given at Teachers College, Columbia to various postdiploma courses in specialized areas, nursing is now embarking on advanced education for the "skills of nursing" in particular. This is to ensure that the increased education increases the nurses' education in NURSING. The advanced education of nurses must be advanced in "nursing situations" as opposed to "student practice." The article also discusses Baccalaureate Degree Programs and Advanced Programs. The April 1960 issue that contains this article has been digitized. See the Issue level record.
