Processing Information: The William George Hardy and Miriam Pauls Hardy Collection was organized and catalogued by Linda Klouzal and Kate Sohasky in 2013-2014 with assistance from student assistants Dana Ettinger, Barbara Holt, Richard Skelton, and Katherine Smoak. The project was supported by a Cataloging Hidden Special Collections and Archives grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, through a program administered by the Council on Library and Information Resources (CLIR). Phoebe Evans Letocha served as the grant's Principal Investigator at the Alan Mason Chesney Medical Archives.

1947 – 1978 - Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine
1949 – 1980 - Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health

Administrative/Biographical History:

Miriam Pauls Hardy was born Miriam Dorothy Pauls on February 4, 1912 in St. Louis, Missouri. She received her A.B. from Harris Teachers College, St. Louis in 1932, A.M. from Wayne State University in 1939, and Ph.D. from Northwestern in 1949. She additionally completed graduate work at the Central Institute for the Deaf, which shared an affiliation with Washington University in St. Louis. Prior to arriving at Johns Hopkins, she taught at the New Jersey School for the Deaf, was an instructor in special education at Michigan State Normal College and a clinical supervisor of hearing therapy in the Special Education Clinics at Indiana State Teachers College. During the Second World War, Hardy joined the Navy's WAVES as a Lieutenant stationed at the speech and hearing rehabilitation center at the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia, where she met lifelong colleagues William G. Hardy and Harriet L. Haskins. Miriam married William on August 3, 1960. Following her wartime service, she returned to Northwestern to complete her doctorate and arrived at Hopkins in 1949 to commence work as an audiologist for the Hearing and Speech Center at the Johns Hopkins Hospital – the first hearing and speech center affiliated with a Medical School in the United States – with William G. Hardy and Harriet L. Haskins. The three later became known as H. H. & H.

Miriam Hardy held appointments in each of the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions. Beginning in 1949, she held appointments as Assistant Professor in the School of Hygiene and Public Health's Division of Audiology and Speech (renamed the Division of Communicative Science in 1970), Assistant Professor of Laryngology and Otology in the School of Medicine, and Audiologist in the Hearing and Speech Center, located in a wing of the Harriet Lane Home at the Johns Hopkins Hospital. In 1956, she became Associate Professor in the Schools of Medicine and Hygiene and Public Health. She assumed the status of Associate Professor Emeritus in the Schools of Medicine and Hygiene and Public Health in 1977.

As an audiologist, language and speech pathologist, and advocate, Hardy's approach drew on medicine, education, and outreach. Her research, publications, and public presence helped to alter expert consensus on deafness and hearing-impairment by demonstrating that hearing impairment occurred along a spectrum and should be viewed as a preventable disease. Her work with children, early detection, and education challenged trends of classifying hearing-impaired youths as mentally deficient or incorrigible. This work additionally helped to construct hearing impairment as a multifaceted communicative disorder, with an emphasis on language and speech development in early childhood as essential to the treatment and prevention of hearing impairment. Her contributions were recognized nationally and internationally.

She maintained multiple external affiliations throughout her career, most importantly serving as a consultant to the Maryland State Departments of Health and Education and the American Speech and Hearing Association, and as a member of the Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf.

Miriam and William Hardy were particularly recognized for their collaborative contributions to scientific knowledge and public awareness of deafness and hearing-impairment. As both a married and professional couple, the Hardys worked as a team throughout their careers, operating as a dynamic force in the field through their research, clinical practice, and outreach.

William G. Hardy was born on October 7, 1910 in Cleveland, Ohio. Hardy received his Ph.B. in English (speech), political science and history from Brown University in 1931, his A.M. in English and linguistics from New York University in 1933, and his Ph.D. in rhetoric, speech science, and linguistics from Cornell University in 1943. From 1945 to 1947, Hardy served in the US Naval Hospital in Philadelphia as Director of Aural and Speech Rehabilitation, where he met lifelong colleagues Miriam D. Pauls and Harriet L. Haskins. Hardy married Pauls on August 3, 1960. The three became known as H. H. & H. through their joint clinical and advocacy efforts at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Hearing and Speech Center.

Hardy held appointments in each of the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions. Arriving at Hopkins in 1947, he held the position of Associate Professor of Laryngology and Otology and Director of Aural and Speech Rehabilitation within the School of Medicine. In July of that year, Hardy was appointed to a directorship the Hearing and Speech Center, located in a wing of the Harriet Lane Home at the Johns Hopkins Hospital. The center opened in the summer of 1948. Hardy drew upon his wartime naval experience to found the center and was soon thereafter joined by Pauls and Haskins in 1949. The center was the first hearing and speech clinic affiliated with a medical school in the United States. He served in his role as its Director until 1975, and was succeeded by Hiroshi Shimizu. Beginning in 1949, Hardy jointly held the position of Associate Professor in the Division of Audiology and Speech through the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health's Department of Physiological Hygiene, and was promoted to Professor in 1966. In 1970 under his direction, the division was renamed the Division of Communicative Science and moved to the Department of Public Health Administration. Hardy was appointed Head of that division until 1979, when he assumed the status of Professor Emeritus of Public Health Services Administration until his death in 1980. In 1976 he became as Associate Professor Emeritus of Laryngology and Otology, retiring from that position in 1978.

Hardy's role at Hopkins was to integrate teaching, research, and clinical experience to generate social applications. His work was recognized nationally and internationally. As an audiologist and advocate, Hardy's major contributions to the field of audiology included raising awareness about the problems of licensure and accountability within the profession of audiology, the need for mandatory screening of young children, and the therapeutic effects of education. Throughout his career he sought to bring together medicine, education, and outreach. His research, publications, and public presence helped to alter the field's consensus on deafness and hearing-impairment by demonstrating that hearing impairment occurs along a variable spectrum, and that the brain – not the ears – is responsible for hearing. His work with children, early detection and education challenged trends of classifying hearing-impaired youths as mentally deficient or incorrigible. This work helped to construct hearing impairment as a multifaceted communicative disorder, emphasizing language and speech development in early childhood as essential to the treatment and prevention of hearing impairment.

He maintained many external affiliations in the capacities of leadership, membership, and consulting throughout his career, including the Alexander Graham Bell Association, the American Speech and Hearing Association, the U.S. Children's Bureau, the Maryland State Health Department, and the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke.

William and Miriam Hardy were particularly recognized for their collaborative contributions to scientific knowledge and public awareness of deafness and hearing-impairment. As both a married and professional couple, the Hardys worked as a team throughout their careers, operating as a dynamic force in the field through their research, clinical practice, and outreach.

Chronology: 1947-1975 - Johns Hopkins Hospital
1947 – 1978 - Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine
1949 – 1980 - Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health

Scope and Content:

The William George Hardy and Miriam Pauls Hardy Collection documents the role the Hardys played as audiologists in the identification and treatment of people, particularly children, with communicative disorders. Collection materials document the Hardys teaching and research as faculty members in the Department of Otolaryngology at the School of Medicine and within the School of Hygiene and Public Health. The collection contains records from the Hearing and Speech Center of the Johns Hopkins Hospital where the Hardys conducted their clinical work. There are also materials from the Evening College and Summer Session and records from the Hearing and Speech Center of the John F. Kennedy Institute. An extensive set of files document Miriam and William Hardy's active involvement as leaders, committee members, and consultants for the leading professional societies and organizations in their field. There are also materials pertaining to the numerous conferences the Hardys attended or coordinated, as well as their talks and lectureships. There are many awards and tributes the Hardys received for their contributions to the field. Personal and family materials include correspondence related to their 1960 marriage and the deaths of William Hardy and Miriam Hardy's mother Amelia Pauls. Finally the collection contains series of publication files, photographs, and audio tapes.

Accruals Description: 2010-047

Custodial History:

Collection was donated to Johns Hopkins University by the estate of Miriam Pauls Hardy.

Archival Arrangement:

The papers of William G. Hardy and of Miriam Pauls Hardy were intermixed at the time the archives obtained the collection. It is not always possible to tell which records pertain to Miriam and which to William Hardy and many of the materials concern projects they worked on together. Consequently, instead of two separate collections their records have been kept together as one collection.

Language: English

Conditions Governing Access Element:

This collection contains some restricted records. Materials pertaining to patients, students, employees, and human research subjects, as well as recent administrative records, carry restrictions on access. Information identifying restricted documents and folders is noted on folder records throughout the collection. Researchers would need to obtain individual authorizations or waivers of authorizations for access and use of protected health information and medical records. For more information about the policies and procedures for access, see the Archives Policy on Access and Use.

Use/Reproduction Restrictions:

Subject - Topical:

Audiology

Related Archival Material Element:

Architectural drawings by the architect James R. Edmunds, Jr. of the Hearing and Speech Center have been transferred from the Hardy Collection to the Architectural Drawings Collection. Materials include one drawing of Pavilion B second floor of the Harriet Lane Home, dated 1947, the original site of the Hearing and Speech Center, and several architectural drawings of the expanded facilities on the 4th floor of the Carnegie Dispensary Building. These drawings are dated 1959-1960 and include the E.N.T. Department, audiometric examination rooms, arrangement of the audiometric testing and control rooms, and the Hearing and Speech Clinic.

Series 2: Correspondence Files - 1949; 1962-1963; 1951-1952; 2003; 1993; 1966-1984; 1954-1958; 1986; 2006-2008; 1960

Scope and Content: This series includes the Hardys professional and personal correspondence. Correspondence files contain letters of appreciation and of inquiry from former students; congratulations letters from friends and colleagues for achievements and honors; requests for references; permissions requests to reprint from Hardy publications as well as general publications related correspondence. Materials also include correspondence about children's medical treatment and treatment institutions; letters by administrators from the Board of Education of Baltimore County about the Hardy's work; correspondence from colleagues in the field of audiology at other institutions; and letters about talks by the Hardys. Personal correspondence includes cards and letters that Miriam and William sent to each other; cards and letters from colleagues, friends, and family; correspondence with relatives; notes and cards congratulating the Hardys on their engagement and marriage; and letters, notes, and cards to Miriam P. Hardy after the deaths of Miriam's mother, Amelia Pauls, and of William G. Hardy, conveying sympathy and condolence and information about funeral services.

Archival Arrangement: Correspondence is arranged into sub-series including general correspondence, correspondence pertaining to the Hardy's wedding, and condolence correspondence concerning Miriam Hardy's mother's death and the death of William G. Hardy. Correspondence is organized alphabetically by the last name of the correspondent. In some instances documents are filed by organization name or the name of the subject of the correspondence. Within folders documents are roughly in reverse chronological order.

Sub-series 2.1.0: Correspondence - 1951-1952; 1962-1963; 2003; 1954-1958; 1960; 1968-1984; 1993; 2007-2008; 1949

Scope and Content: Among the correspondence is a noteworthy letter to Dr. Wilkerson dated January 31, 1951 in which William G Hardy responds to an offer to serve as the Director of the Tennessee Hearing and Speech Foundation. In this letter Hardy provides a concise description of the establishment of the audiology and speech center at Hopkins and of the research program and graduate program in audiology and speech. Hardy provides his assessment of the work, the focus, facilities, excellence, and the scope of the program.

Series 3: Johns Hopkins Institutional Records - 1940-1999; 1928

Scope and Content: The Hardys held simultaneous joint professional affiliations within each of the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions. Their primary affiliation was within the School of Hygiene and Public Health as professors in the Division of Communicative Science, though they held important roles as professors in the School of Medicine's Division of Otolaryngology, and as audiologists in the Johns Hopkins Hospital's Hearing and Speech Center. The bulk content of this series pertains to their teaching and administrative roles within the School of Hygiene and Public Health, as well as their teaching responsibilities in the Evening College and Summer Session.

Archival Arrangement: Institutional records are organized by Johns Hopkins entity, school and division.

Creator: Johns Hopkins University. Division of Speech and Audiology
The Division of Speech and Audiology was originally housed within the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, Department of Physiological Hygiene from 1949 to 1950 but was moved to the Department of Environmental Medicine the following year where it remained until 1970. The Division maintained close educational and professional ties with the School of Medicine's Department of Otolaryngology and the Hospital's Hearing and Speech Clinic. During the 1970-1971 academic year, the Division of Speech and Audiology was moved to the Department of Public Health Administration. William G. Hardy, who founded the division, then oversaw the restructuring of the program, its curriculum, and its renaming as the Division of Communicative Science in 1971.

Sub-sub-sub-series 3.2.4.2: Division of Communicative Sciences (1971-1979) - 1946; 1963-1984

Creator: Johns Hopkins University. Division of Communicative Sciences
The Division of Communicative Science was housed within the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, as a successor to the Division of Speech and Audiology. During the 1970-1971 academic year, the Division of Speech and Audiology was moved to the Department of Public Health Administration. William G. Hardy oversaw the restructuring of the program, its curriculum, and its renaming as the Division of Communicative Science in 1971. Thirteen members of the faculty were added to the Division, the curriculum was restructured and seven new courses were added; the 11 original courses had been relatively unrevised since 1949. During the 1976-1977 academic year, the Division continued to reside within the then newly re-named Department of Health Services Administration.

The Division of Communicative Science's academic program provided a Master of Health Sciences degree, M. Sc., which was a one-year program, with a specialized concentration in clinical aspects of audiology and speech, especially as they relate to community services. The program also provided Doctor of Science, Sc.D., and Ph.D. degrees in communicative sciences. The program emphasized a combination of education, research, and clinical work. Students had an opportunity to receive clinical training at a number of institutions including the Johns Hopkins Hospital Hearing and Speech Center, the Good Samaritan Hospital, the John F. Kennedy Institute, and the Baltimore City Hospitals.

The Division of Communicative Sciences remained within the Department of Public Health Administration until its dissolution in 1979. William G. Hardy, who had established the graduate program, served as its Director for the duration of its existence, from 1971 to 1979. The Division maintained a close relationship in an educational and training capacity with the Hearing and Speech Center at the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Extent: 3 Folders; 3 folders

Scope and Content: The Industrial Audiometric Technicians Training Course was a three-day course offered primarily to industrial audiometric technicians working for major businesses and corporations in industries with high occupational risk for permanent hearing damage and loss, which from these files appears to have been held twice annually. The collection's contents indicate the course was taught at least as early as 1969 by Dr. Catlin, Dr. Glackin, Dr. Kolman, and Dr. Strauss, though the bulk of the files are from the years 1972 through 1974. In 1972 course materials indicate the course may have initially been offered within the Hearing and Speech Center at the Johns Hopkins Hospital; course materials from 1973, 1974, and 1975 indicate the course was offered within the School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Sub-series 3.3: The School of Medicine Files - 1953-1991

Scope and Content: This subseries consists primarily of student and faculty files from the School of Medicine's Department of Otolaryngology as well as a few files related to memorial lectures and banquets and the graduate school's programs. Until 1973, the department with which the Hardys were affiliated in the School of Medicine was located within the Department of Surgery and was called Otolaryngology. In 1974 the department's name was changed to the Department of Laryngology and Otology, which was located within the Section of Surgical Sciences.

Archival Arrangement: Materials within sub-sub-sub-series are arranged in alphabetical order by folder title.

Sub-sub-series 3.3.1: Department of Surgery, Otolaryngology (1947-1973) and Section of Surgical Sciences, Department of Laryngology and Otology (1974-1984) - 1953-1991

Sub-sub-series 3.3.1.1: Faculty and Student Files - 1954-1990

Scope and Content: Student and faculty files including those of John E. Bordley, Francis Catlin, Polish national Danuta Haciska, and Henry Mark.

While the majority of the student and faculty files in the collection concern the School of Hygiene and Public Health, many contain materials from diverse Hopkins institutions in which the Hardys worked including the Hearing and Speech Clinic, Summer Sessions, and the School of Medicine. The bulk of the materials are correspondence, including letters of recommendation. Other materials include transcripts, research grants, bibliography, and other forms of evaluation.

Archival Arrangement: Faculty and student files are filed arranged in sub-series according to institutional affiliation and folders are arranged in alphabetical order by last name.

Conditions Governing Access Element: Access to personnel, faculty and student records of living individuals is restricted. See individual folder records for restrictions.

Related Archival Materials Element: See also Personnel, Faculty and Student Files in the School of Hygiene and Public Health, Department of Public Health Administration & Department of Health Services Administration, Division of Communicative Sciences; School of Medicine; the Johns Hopkins Hospital, and the Hearing and Speech Center.

Sub-series 3.5: Evening College and Summer Session Files - 1971-1979

Scope and Content: The Evening College & Summer Session was a part-time program offered by the School of Education. In an effort to address the professional development needs of educators, the school emphasized community outreach and creative part-time programs. In 1947 the part-time programs were consolidated into McCoy College, named in honor of John W. McCoy, a benefactor of Hopkins. The Evening College and Summer Session began offering courses from the School of Hygiene and Public Health in 1961. In 1965, the program was renamed the Evening College. In 1983 it was called the School of Continuing Studies. The name changed in 1999 with its increased focus on business and education.

The contents of the subseries include materials related to the creation of a program that culminated in a Masters or Doctorate of Education, initiated by George T. Nager and William G. Hardy during the 1974-1975 academic year. In 1977, William G. Hardy was appointed as a member of the Interdivisional Doctor of Education Committee for the Evening College and Summer Session. The bulk content of the subseries are course-related and teaching materials including syllabi, reading material, student exams, and one student dissertation. Courses offered at the Evening College and Summer Session included classes on language disorders, linguistics, phonetics, and audiology.

Archival Arrangement: Materials are arranged into two sub-sub-series and within each, folders are arranged in alphabetical order by folder title.

Sub-series 3.6: Conferences, Symposia, and Workshops Hosted or Co-hosted by Johns Hopkins University - 1961-1976; 1946

Scope and Content: The contents of this sub-series pertain to conferences in which the Hardys participated that were held at The Johns Hopkins University. Materials include attendance forms, photocopies of journal articles, bibliography lists, biographies of presenters, conference participant lists and biographies, correspondence, grant application, telephone messages, newspaper clippings, programs, notes, typescripts of speeches, and schedules.

The Division of Audiology and Speech sponsored a series of lecture-discussions on key topics in hearing and speech therapy and research, held during the first several months of the year in 1969 and again in 1970. These were titled Symposium on Communicative Disorders and Symposium in Hearing and Speech Science, respectively. A large section of materials, including an audio reel, pertain to the conference, "Speech Pathology and Audiology in Emerging Health Delivery Systems: Feedback and Feedforward."

Archival Arrangement: Materials are arranged in chronological order by event date.

Folder 3.6.01: The Johns Hopkins Conference on Dyslexia - 1946; c.1961

Sub-series 3.7: The John F. Kennedy Institute Files - 1967-1977

Scope and Content: This sub-series contains files pertaining to William G. Hardy's affiliation with the Kennedy Institute's Department of Hearing and Speech as an audiology consultant. By the 1960s the then named Children's Rehabilitation Institute was recognized as a leader in the field of developmental disabilities. The Mental Retardation Facilities and Community Mental Health Center Construction Act of 1963 led to the first federally funded grant to develop professional training, care, and services for individuals with developmental disabilities. At that time, the Children's Rehabilitation Institute established an affiliation with the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and relocated to 707 N. Broadway. In 1967 the Institute changed its name to the John F. Kennedy Institute for the Habilitation of the Mentally and Physically Handicapped Child, The John F. Kennedy Institute for short, in recognition of the late president's commitment to improving the lives of mentally disabled persons. The institute opened its new doors on October 15, 1967.

The Kennedy Institute's Department of Hearing and Speech, created in 1967, provided patient diagnosis, evaluation, and treatment and included both outpatient and inpatient hospital care. Its principle objective was to offer training to professionals in the field of communication sciences, including speech pathologists, otolaryngologists, and audiologists, and related professions such as pediatrics, special education, and public health nursing. The Hearing and Speech Department also offered training programs for school teachers, parents, as well as programs concerning home management and family counseling.

In 1971, William Hardy and Malcolm S. Preston, from the Kennedy Institute, developed a joint training plan for the Kennedy Institute's Hearing and Speech Department, the Division of Communicative Science within the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, and the Johns Hopkins Hospital Hearing and Speech Center. The aim of the joint training program was to provide clinical training and experience for doctoral candidates in the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health who were interested in the communication problems of the multiply-handicapped child.

The majority of collection documents are dated from the early period of the Institute's affiliation with the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions and pertain to the Institute's Hearing and Speech Department. Materials include correspondence with administrators who worked closely with the Hopkins Hearing and Speech Center staff, an annual report, papers describing the Kennedy Institute and the Institute's Department of Hearing and Speech, and a joint training plan, co-authored by William Hardy, for the Division of Communicative Science in the School of Hygiene and Public Health and the Hearing and Speech Departments at the Kennedy Institute and the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Archival Arrangement: Materials are arranged into two groupings, Correspondence and general files. Correspondence files are sorted into groupings of correspondence: M. P. Hardy; W. G. Hardy; A. R. Hartgrove; J. Mills; R. A. Nelson; M. S. Preston; and F. Richardson. Within each grouping correspondence are in alphabetical order by correspondent. General files are arranged in alphabetical order by folder title.

Series 4: External Institutional Affiliations Files - 1949-1990; 1875

Scope and Content: Correspondence and other files in this series pertain to the Hardys' external institutional affiliations. The Hardys played important roles, as leaders and consultants, in national professional organizations. William Hardy was a consultant to the U. S. Children's Bureau for over twenty years. Miriam Hardy was a member of National Advisory Committees on Deaf Education and a consultant in communicative disorders for numerous states. The external affiliations forming the bulk content of the series include: the Alexander Graham Bell Association, the American Speech and Hearing Association, the Maryland State Board of Examiners, the Maryland State Departments of Health and Education, the National Institute of Neurological Disease and Stroke (formerly the National Institute of Neurological Disease and Blindness), and the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. A considerable number of files pertain to the passage of legislation regulating state licensure of audiologists and hearing-aid retailers.

Materials include brochures, budgets, certificates of membership, correspondence, committee and officer reports, conference programs, governing documents, hearing screening forms (blank), legislative bills, meeting agendas and minutes, newspaper clippings, notes, organization charts, pamphlets, papers presented at talks and conferences, press releases, program descriptions, professional organizations' publications, rosters, and tables.

Archival Arrangement: This series contains sub-series for each organization with which the Hardys worked. These sub-series are in alphabetical order by organization name.

Series 6: Research Files - 1942-1991

Sub-series 6.1: Research Studies - 1952-1969

Scope and Content: These materials concern research conducted and supervised by the Hardys. Research projects include The Collaborative Perinatal Study and ancillary research studies, including studies of hearing and communication disorders in children with rubella; studies of the effects of delayed auditory feedback on infants' vocalization; hearing loss and language acquisition in very young children; and audiometric testing.

Johns Hopkins University, in collaboration with the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke, NINDB, participated, along with thirteen other medical institutions, in a national study of 60,000 pregnancies and resultant children up through eight years of age. The study's purpose was to investigate the relationships of factors in pregnancy to morbidity and mortality of children. Between 1958 and 1964, the Hearing and Speech Center and Department of Otolaryngology at Johns Hopkins participated in research on neurological and sensory disorders of infancy and childhood. The Hopkins Collaborative Perinatal Study population was utilized for this research that included the study of the development of hearing in infancy and early childhood. This project included neonatal auditory screening and the development of a field screening hearing and language test for a 36-month check-point of the national study. The research resulted in an illustrative motion picture concerned with the development and measurement of hearing in infancy.

In the final years of the study, between 1963 and 1964, the Baltimore area was subject to an outbreak of rubella that affected many of the study participants. Children with congenital rubella were included in a follow-up study of communication disorders in children with rubella.

Sub-series materials include correspondence, data, forms, grant applications, notes, and papers describing research at Johns Hopkins including papers by Janet Hardy, Miriam and William Hardy, and Harriet Haskins.

Archival Arrangement: Materials are arranged in several sub-sub-series, in alphabetical order by research study name or descriptive titles.

Related Archival Materials Element: Sub-series 3.6 "Conferences, Symposia, and Workshops hosted or Co-hosted by The Johns Hopkins University" contains a program for a conference hosted at Hopkins in 1970 on the Collaborative Perinatal Project.

Sub-series 6.2: Research Subject Files - 1942-1991

Scope and Content: Topics of key interest to the Hardys included among the files are audiometry -- EDR audiometry, SKR audiometry, and PGSR audiometry, and Dyslexia and other reading disorders affected or caused by hearing impairment, specifically as regarded the connection between learning disabilities and hearing disabilities. Research on the effects of congenital rubella was a research subject of particular importance to Miriam P. Hardy, who completed research on the subject alongside Dr. Janet Hardy. Many files pertain to screening, development, and evaluation, including screening methods of infants and children as well as language development, aphasia, and other language disorders.

Materials include bibliographies; newspaper and journal articles, monographs, papers, reports, reprints, and theses; charts and handouts used in teaching and publications; correspondence; medical evaluation forms, including screening examination forms; topical literature including informational pamphlets, booklets, and advertisements; and hand-written notes and notebooks. Files contain brief runs of two periodicals, Verbatim and Science.

Series 7: Publication Files - 1938-1981

Scope and Content: This series contains materials pertaining to publications by William G. Hardy and Miriam P. Hardy. Publications include works by one or both of the Hardys as well as works co-authored with other colleagues. Many of Miriam's records use her maiden name, Miriam D. Pauls. Material types comprise journals containing articles by the Hardys; book reviews; correspondence with publishers including letters, galley proofs, marketing literature, original artwork, and front matter; annotated drafts; notes; and reprints. These files include letters and other materials by William Hardy and his publisher about the evolution of his book project, Language, Thought, and Experience. Materials also include correspondence and drafts of materials pertaining to an audio tape series of seminars in audiology for which William G. Hardy served on the editorial board and contributed a seminar.

Archival Arrangement: The publication series is arranged into sub-series by publication type: journal articles; books; editorial board projects; paper drafts; and reprints. Publications and related files pertaining to more than one type, such as both a monograph and a reprint, are divided into respective sub-series. Within each sub-series folders are arranged in alphabetical order by the title of the work. Folders contain a mix of publishers' correspondence, drafts, and notes. The sub-series, "General Correspondence with Publishers" contains mostly requests for W. G. Hardy to review submissions pertaining to his area of expertise. The Bibliography/Footnotes/Index sub-series comprises index cards with citations that may have been used in producing an index for a book or as a reference for compiling bibliographies or footnotes.

Related Archival Materials Element: Related materials by the Hardys, including papers, are also located in the conference files, the external institutional affiliation files, and The Evening College Publications.
